CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Far Western cities, once "tough," are now as tender as spring lamb. But Chicago never disappoints. Today's news read in the bracing air from the lake tells you of one gangster "taken" for a "ride," one of those sad Chicago rides. A lady found his body with many bullets where his automobile ride ended. Gamblers had half promised to "lay off" during the Merry Christmas shopping season, but regretted their kindness. They, also, should share the season's festivities, besides, they had some shooting to do. Frank Noonan, "proprietor of a popular beer oasis," who disagreed with some others as to law breaking "privileges," was found shot to death, at the entrance to his oasis. "Gats" carried here have many bullets, and when shooting starts, there is rarely a failure.

THESE fights and killings in Chicago's jungle do not bother the big city of terrific enterprise. Gamblers, gangsters, blackmailers, beer runners, etc., only shoot each other, and in spite of occasional police defiance, the professional criminal's life is made harder daily.

If there were not so much money in bootlegging, such willing payments to various officials "for not seeing what they might see," police work would be easier.

LONG ago, near Batavia, N. Y., a boy was born and soon had an idea. He once told this writer how he gave up smoking "extravagant 5-cent cigars," saving money to carry out his plan, and build his first car.

Two men slept in the upper, two in the lower berth, for 50 cents apiece. Abraham Lincoln was one of his first passengers, going from Chicago to Springfield, and was too long for the berth. The other man protested. The man selling the tickets beside the car was George M. Pullman, and now the Interstate Commerce Commission fixes the value of his Pullman Company at $110,228,786, which is far below its real value.

GET a good idea, stick to it, make sacrifices, and the idea will take care of you, later.

STATISTICS, carefully analyzed, tell, with marvellous accuracy, what will happen. The number of suicides in each month is foretold, and now you learn that just about 22,000 will be killed and 700,000 injured by automobiles in the coming year.

Nearly all those deaths and accidents would be avoided, if men, women and children would be made to realize that public roads are more dangerous now than railroad tracks. Many deaths would be avoided if every man were jailed for a year, when caught driving, moderately or completely drunk.

THERE is some comfort for worried parents in the fact that the Los Angeles kidnaping was based on revenge, it was not a kidnaping crime in the ordinary sense.

Children should be warned not to go with strangers on any pretext, and should never be sent away with strangers by those in charge of them, as the poor child in Los Angeles was sent thoughtlessly to her death.

Criminals know that kidnaping is the most dangerous of all crimes, almost certain of detection and punished remorselessly.

THE learned Dr. Stockard, professor of anatomy at Cornell University, has experimented with alcohol on 5,000 guinea pigs during 17 years. This is his conclusion:

"Guinea pigs drunk with alcohol are if anything a little healthier than teetotal guinea pigs, and live just as long. One guinea pig was made drunk with alcohol six days every week and his health was perfect."

But first, the guinea pig has nothing to do but eat, breathe and digest. He doesn't need to use his brain. Second, the kind college professor gave good alcohol to his drunken guinea pigs, not bootlegger alcohol.

CHICAGO'S coroner warns all citizens that Christmas time whisky is worse than usual and tells them "drink it and your family may have to hang crepe beside the holly."

"KING" BENJAMIN PURNELL, head of his own religious sect, told his followers that he would die only temporarily. They must sit around four days

WILLIAM E. HICKMAN

"I DIDN'T KILL HER" —HICKMAN

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23.—The following confession, given by William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," confessed kidnaper of Marian Parker, was made ,to one of his captors, Chief of Police Tom Gurdane, of Pendleton, and others in the city jail at Pendleton:

"I ran away from home and I was in California," Hickman told officers in relating his tale. "I had been working in the First National Bank and forged some checks and got paroled and went back to Kansas City with mother and I wanted to go back again so I then got this coupe in Kansas City which belonged to Dr. Mantz, I believe.

"At first I did not come direct out here. I went to Chicago before I came here and I rented that apartment in Los Angeles at the Bellevue Arms. I think it was on November 22, or just before Thanksgiving. On Thanksgiving Day I went down to San Diego and when I came back the next day I picked this man and a lady up. He said his name was Andrew Cramer, and the lady's name was June Dunning. I'm pretty sure that was it.

"I did not known anyone here. I was making my living by hold-ups and I thought if I could get acquainted with some older men we could work to better advantage and it would not be as much risk and could probably get away with holdups easier.

"We just held up drug stores and places like that. That is the reason I had all these guns. That .38 (the revolver found between his knees when arrested) belongs to Andrew. He left it with me so it didn't make any difference and we worked several places. He wanted me to get some chloroform for him, and ether. I didn't ask

Indict 'Fox' For Child's Murder

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—An indictment carrying two counts was returned against William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," at a special session of the county grand jury last night.

One count accused the confessed kidnaper of 12-year-old Marion Parker with kidnaping for the purpose of extortion. The other charged murder.

The indictment was returned in Judge Carlos Hardy's department of the Superior Court at 8:30 o'clock. A bench warrant, with no provision for bail, was issued for Hickman, who is now under arrest in Pendleton, Ore.

Among the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury were Perry M. Parker, father of the murdered child; County Autopsy Surgeon Wagner; Naomi Britton, clerk at the school from which the child was taken by a ruse a week ago; Mrs. May Holt, attendance supervisor at the school; Police Sergt. H. L. Barlow, finger-print expert; H. C. Nutt, handwriting expert, and Detective Lieuts. William Warren and Jesse Reeves, of Wilshire Station.

Speedy justice.

This was the end to which all the law enforcement agencies of California were working today at top speed to bring to a close the West's most sensational kidnaping and murder case.

In a cell at Pendleton, Ore., William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," self-confessed kidnaper of 12-year-old Marian Parker, calmly admitted he believed the death penalty was near.

GUARD PRISONER

But speedy justice was to be orderly justice. While an airplane carried extraditing officers northward, Pendleton officers took steps to see that "lynch law" was not invoked and further that Hickman should not cheat the law through suicide.

Talk of "lynch law," however, was dwindling. In Pendleton order existed. No talk of "taking the law into their own hands" was heard and reports from Los Angeles said a calmer feeling existed there today.

Meanwhile a search went on for Andrew Kramer and June Dunning, asserted accomplice of "The Fox," although officers believed they were only fictions of Hickman's mind.

Reports from Kansas City that hereditary insanity would be interposed as a defense for Hickman aroused interest in Los Angeles, where it was said the best alienists of the country would be called upon to combat such a plea.

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23.—Betraying in casuel conversation with a guard his knowledge of the brutal mutilation of little Marian Parker of Los Angeles, whose kidnaping he has already confessed, William Edward Hickman, today faced a fresh grilling at the hands of authorities.

Following his capture after a sensational automobile dash into the Northwest from the scene of the crime, young Hickman denied the killing of the little daughter of his former employer, and charged that the murder was the work of Andrew Kramer and June Danning.

MAKES ADMISSIONS

But early today as he alternately boasted and joked in his cell in the county jail here Hickman made admissions to L. R. Connor, his jailor, which caused authorities to believe that he knew more of the killing than he has admitted.

Fear that Hickman might attempt the suicide route out of his trouble

"THE FOX'S" TRAIL

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—Here's the trail Hickman "The Fox," left—from the time he stole little Marion Parker to the moment the law laid its hands on him in Oregon:

Thursday, Dec. 15.

12:15 P. M.—Hickman appears at Marion's school, tells story of her father's injury in auto wreck, and drives off with child.

Afternoon—He sends two telegrams, one from Alhambra, the other from Pasadena, to Marion's father, telling him to await instructions.

Night—He mails, in Los Angeles, a special delivery letter to Parker, which is delivered the following day.

Friday, Dec. 16.

1 P. M.—He mails his second special delivery letter, with ransom terms to Parker.

Late Afternoon—He thrice calls the Parker house on the telephone, but does not speak when Parker answers.

Evening—He telephones Parker, and sets rendezvous for Tenth and Gramercy streets at 8 o'clock. Parker answers, but Hickman, lurking somewhere unseen, notes trap set by police cars around trysting place, and fails to keep appointment.

Saturday, Dec. 17.

Morning—He mails two special delivery letters to Parker, chiding him for setting trap and offering last chance.

Noon—He telephones from three Inglewood pay stations, but does not talk to Parker when the father lifts his receiver.

Evening—He telephones Parker, instructing him to take the $1,500 ransom money to Fifth and Manhattan streets at 8 o'clock. Parker keeps tryst alone. Hickman drives beside Parker's car, takes money and leaves mutilated body of girl nearby. Escapes.

Later—Hickman disposes of remaining portions of victim's body in Elysian Park district. Retreats to

Bandits Routed

MRS. ANNA CAIN MRS. MILDRED KING

Mrs. Cain, 24, and Mrs. King, 35, of 1443 Chateau street, were held up at Forty-fifth street and Penn avenue by two bandits who had a few minutes previously successfully robbed two men and a woman. Mrs. Cain, however, possessed a right healthy voice, Mrs. King, ditto, and two plainclothes men responded and captured the youthful bandit pair.

JOHN KILGARIFF HARRY HALLER

Kilgariff, 23, of 4223 Geneva street, and Haller, 20, of 4212 Post street, were captured by Joseph McAfee and William Lavery, police plainclothes officers, shown in the insets, who answered the women's cries.

PENNINGTON CLEARED BY CHIEF

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Sun-Telegraph staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Following a series of investigations conducted over a period of several weeks, the Treasury Department officials have expressed full confidence in Prohibition Administrator Pennington, of the Western Pennsylvania-West Virginia district, and have cleared him of charges of improper enforcement methods in the Pittsburgh area.

The charges were filed with the department by former Prohibition Administrator Baird, of Pittsburgh, Pennington's predecessor, who claims that numerous seizures have been made in the district without search warrants. Baird cited a list of approximately 100 cases in which he said stills were improperly seized.

"After due investigation of the charges," said Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran, "we feel that Administrator Pennington is keeping within legal bounds, and we regard him as one of our best administrators."

Doran said that conflicting opinions had been handed down by the courts on the right of enforcement agents to make broad seizures, and that until the point was finally settled by the United States Supreme Court the department felt justified in continuing this course.

Pennington was in Washington yesterday conferring with Commissioner Doran, but left late in the day for Pittsburgh. While here, he also saw Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions.

Some investigation of the charges against the Pittsburgh dry officials is said to have been made by the Department of Justice also.

Coincident with the vindication of Pennington, Commissioner Doran let it be known that the department is giving little consideration to the proposal for having West Virginia separated from the Western Pennsylvania district. In his opinion the district will remain as it is.

EXPLOSION FOLLOWS THREATS

Carrying out alleged threats against Dr. David M. Davis, of Curry, sympathizers of striking miners, at Mine No. 4 of the Fittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, are believed to have bombed the physician's office early this morning.

The front of the building, a two-story frame structure, was damaged, but no one was injured. Dr. H. S. Lake, an assistant of Dr. Davis, in bed on the second floor, was shaken up when the blast tore loose the front wall of the building.

The bombing is the culmination of weeks of threats against Dr. Davis, his assistant and a nurse, Miss Mildred Fisher, state police were told. The day after the Supreme Court handed down its decision on evictions, Dr. Davis said, his office was stoned and several windows were broken.

Miss Fisher has been threatened, she says. Her brother is a union miner, she told the troopers, but she said union sympathizers had ordered her to quit working for Dr. Davis until he stopped treating non-union men and their families.

The bombed building is used as an office and emergency hospital.

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, said this morning he was satisfied that no member of the union was responsible for the outrage.

Cult Girl Fails in Dash

Making a break for liberty while being taken to the county jail last night, Mrs. Helen Cheslyn, alias Mrs. Helen Johnson, 21, said to be a "love and health" cult devotee, wanted in Cleveland, dashed two blocks along Fourth avenue before being captured by Deputy United States Marshal E. A. Holden.

After being overtaken, the young woman lay prostrate on the sidewalk, and refused to walk. Casting a rueful glance back at a trail of Christmas bundles he had discarded in the chase, Deputy Holden picked her up and carried her from Ross street and Fourth avenue, one block to the jail, where she is being held awaiting removal to Cleveland.

Mrs. Cheslyn admitted she had been arrested by Cleveland police in a raid in September on Dr. Homer Thompson's "love cult" headquarters. She was taken in custody at the general delivery window at the downtown postoffice, charged with being a fugitive from justice. In the Cleveland raid a large quantity of drugs was said t have been seized.

When apprehended Mrs. Cheslyn admitted her identity and declared herself to be the daughter of "Dr." Thompson. She also declared she is not the sister of Frank Sala, an electrician of Pittsburgh, who was said to have identified her as such when the two met after her first arrest.

NEWSIES SET FOR PARTY

The newsboys of Pittsburghe will fill the big Penn Theater's every seat tomorrow morning.

There will be seats for all at this Christmas Newsboys' party, which begins tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in the new theater at Sixth street and Penn avenue.

Through the co-operation of the manager, L. Lanning, and the Sun-Telegraph, the boys are being given tickets of admission by V. Snyder, circulation manager of the Sun-Tele.

The feature picture of the show will be Lon Chaney's newest screen picture, "London After Midnight." Full of thrills, it will portray Chaney in a new light, and will be especially appropriate for the entertainment of the boys.

An additional "Our Gang" comedy or some other specialty picture that will have the comedy touch, will be added. The doors of the theater will be opened shortly after 8 o'clock. The rule will be:

"First come, first served."

'FOX' DENIES MURDER

caused police to awaken him in his cell early today for a "frisking."

Officers discovered that they had failed to remove his belt and necktie. Rousing him they took these articles away from him and, as an extra precaution, washed and combed his hair to make certain that nothing had been concealed in his long, curly locks.

The first public view of Hickman was that of him weeping.

In his hand was clutched a pink pamphlet, left with him but a moment before by the Rev. W. H. Robbins, Baptist pastor.

"It's about a guy in something of the same fix I'm in," the subdued "Fox" murmured brokenly.

"He was saved by God, it says."

Young Hickman's face was tear-stained and he dabbed at his eyes with a handkerchief, meanwhile keeping his glance away from the crowd and toward the cell floor.

The lad was seated in his small cell, with his elbows on his knees. He had been awakened only a few minutes before and his physical and spiritual nourishment had followed.

"If I had anything to say to my mother it would be to tell her I'm not guilty and not to worry."

William Edward Hickman mumbled these words as he sat in his city jail cell here this morning. He just had been informed that his mother wanted to know if he had any word for her.

Hickman slept peacefully during the after hours of the night. Reasurred when the crowd that had surrounded the jail dwindled away, young Hickman regained his aplomb and was "the life of the party."

To Connor, Hickman went into all the details of his adventures, continuing to blame Kramer for the killing and mutilation of Marian Parker and naming Miss Dunning as an accomplice. He told of calling for the Parker girl, of taking her to a Los Angeles theater that night, of giving her into the keeping of Kramer and finally of receiving part of her dead and butchered body for delivery to Perry M. Parker, the father.

He described how horrible the body looked as, with the eyes drawn open with thin thread, he drove with it to the father; he spoke of the seven parcels in which the limbs and lower torso of the girl were wrapped; he related the manner in which he took $1,500 from the father as ransom money for the safe return of the girl and then how he delivered the body.

Through all the horrible story, Hickman talked coolly almost coldly.

While continuing to deny any part in the killing and mutilation of the Parker child, the prisoner betrayed a startling knowledge of certain details of her death, according to Connor.

Curious groups stepped outside the jail, casting inquisitive looks at the City Hall door.

Hickman went to sleep at about 11 p. m. after a few previous short naps.

In the words of his guards, he slept "like a baby."

So quietly did he sleep, in fact that D. C. Gurdane, brother of the chief and head jailer, had a sudden fear that something might be wrong.

He called another prisoner and asked if he could hear Hickman breathe, the beating of his heart was heard only faintly. Thereupon Gurdane knocked on the cell door until Hickman turned over on his side and continued to doze.

Hickman slept fully dressed. Standing guard inside the cellroom was Connor, outside the cell door was Gurdane, inside the jail proper was Hiram George and outside the building were Roy Montgomery and Bob Goad.

It was God's vengeance and not man's cunning that resulted in his capture, "The Fox" believes.

Speaking of this, Hickman called attention to the fact that, in his notes he had advised Parker to "ask God, not man," if he wished help.

The prisoner began to tell jokes.

"If they put a rope around my neck it's apt to kill me," he said, laughingly. He then told one of the proverbial "Scotchman" stories.

"There was a Scotchman who went to a dentist's office to have a tooth pulled," the now subdued 'Fox' told his mixed audience. "He asked how much it would cost and was told that he would have to pay $1. 'Well, how much will it cost to loosen it,' the Scotchman asked."

Hickman's listeners did not laugh at the attempts at humor, they only sat and watched the boy, and no more than a boy is he, with frank glances of curiosity. It seems to be the same feeling of curiosity which is most marked in Pendleton.

after he died, then he would rise and carry on his plans.

The "king" died, apparently as thoroughly as other men do. But the elders patiently sat waiting for four days. He hasn't risen yet, and they don't know what to think.

Far-sighted friends had the body thoroughly embalmed so that it will last indefinitely, and that was an excellent idea. Some of the faithful will say the embalming prevented the promised resurrection, others that the "king" may rise any day. When Americans able to read and write, full grown, believe such trash, you realize how low are the depths of ignorance, and wonder whether immortality for everybody would really be a good idea.

"Am I Getting Plenty Of Publicity?"—Fox

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23.—(AP.)—Whether William Edward Hickman is the clever, resourceful "Fox" that his ransom letter indicated, or whether he is only a deluded youth secretly pleased with the columns of news he has made in engineering the Marian Parker kidnaping still remain a matter of question today.

"Do you think I will get as much publicity as Leopold and Loeb?" he was quoted as having asked his captors. He was represented as having been boastful of escaping the police machinery of the big cities and of having thought it unusual that "small town" officers effected his capture, but described it to the "will of God."

His confession showed none of the bristling confidence that cropped out in the ransom letters. It was disjointed and often ungrammatical. He is more the soft spoken young bank messenger than the holdup man and kidnaper.

The sleep which he began last night was that of an extremely carefree but tired boy.

Thus far his words and actions have evoked neither pity nor scorn. But his captors took nothing for granted. They have been told that he talked himself out of a prison sentence in the Los Angeles forgery case, leading the court to believe he was under the prison age limit when he really was old enough to have been so punished.

The jail bristled with guns and guards. Hickman was stripped and given new clothing to forestall any possibility that he might have been carrying weapons or narcotics in his regular apparel.

O. K. STEEL IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—Secretary Mellon today ruled present importations of steel products from Germany were not in violation of the anti-dumping provisions of the tariff act, as had been claimed by domestic steel producers.

American steel producers had complained that German manufacturers were selling steel in this country at prices lower than asked in Germany in violation of the dumping provisions.

While the secretary held that present importation did not run counter to the law, he added that the "entire situation would be carefully watched by the Treasury Department so that should conditions change the necessary steps might be taken at once to prevent American industry from being subjected to unfair competition, within the meaning of the anti-dumping section of the emergency tariff act."

PITTSBURGH GIFT BARES LOVE PACT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—A fortune of $250,000 left to a Philadelphia spinster by a Pittsburgh bachelor has revealed a love pact that had been kept by both for more than 40 years.

The legatee is Miss Bernice McNulty, 55. The man with whom she entered into a verbal agreement when he was 15 years old never to marry was William G. Gibson, 60, wealthy Pittsburgh coal operator. An order for the distribution of Gibson's estate was issued by the Pittsburgh Orphans Court. Miss McNulty was named beneficiary in his will, made in 1909.

Miss McNulty said last night she was "too heart-broken" over the death of her friend to discuss his will. Her sister, Adeline McNulty, with whom she lives, together with another sister, said:

"There is nothing unusual about it. My sister and Mr. Gibson have been fast friends for 40 years. An early engagement was never broken, the two agreeing never to marry, yet a beautiful friendship remained."

The women are natives of Emmitsburg, Md.

POSTOFFICE "EXTRA" HELD

He was detected, it was said, in removing the folder from an envelope. Brush was taken before the United States commissioner, who held him under $1,000 bond for court.

Vogel Expected Back By Christmas

George Vogel, North Side chain store proprietor, who caused his family much anxiety by suddenly disappearing from his home some weeks ago and who was located yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal., will come home under cover to spend Christmas with his family, it was learned yesterday. Unable to face the criticism of his friends, he will be met outside the city by members of his family and brought secretly to his home, it was said.

Vogel wired to a brother, William, yesterday asking that a telephone call be placed to a Western city to convince members of the Vogel family that the missing man was alive. The call was completed and William Vogel, after recognizing his brother's voice, wired $100 to pay for transportation back to Pittsburgh.

Communications from the West also were received by others here in Pittsburgh, including Andrew Novak, bookkeeper for the Vogel stores. Novak was asked to "square" Vogel with certain people here who had been hurt by his disappearance, including his wife, and Myrtle Gift, 216 Cremo street, said to be a friend of Vogel.

CITIZENS WATER COMPANY AT SCOTTDALE IS SOLD

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Dec. 23.—The Citizens Water Company, serving 10,000 patrons in Scottdale and vicinity, has been sold to Doenning Co., of Philadelphia, according to announcement today. The purchase price was not made public. Last spring residents rejected a proposal to take over the plant.

SUBSTITUTE FOR PAPER BALLOTS

Miss Arvid Samuelson is shown working the curtain lever on the mechanical device on exhibition at the Chamber of Commerce which will supplant the present method of registering votes if Pennsylvanians approve the proposed Constitutional amendment.

Robbers Seized Eating

Quietly submitting to highwaymen, after making a request that there be no shooting, Howard L. Strain, 35, was knocked unconscious by blows of gun butts after putting his car in his garage in Lincoln avenue, Etna, at 2 o'clock this morning. The thieves took $200.

Edward Kaminski, 22, O'Hara township, stopped in an Etna restaurant, ordered a couple of "hot dogs," and laid down a $5 bill. Motorcycle Patrolman Chester Zygello, who was eating at the time, became suspicious at the display of money, questioned Kaminski and learned that his brother-in-law, Frank Jurkiewitz, 25, of 19 Second street, Sharpsburg, was waiting nearby. Zygello arrested the men.

Search revealed Kaminski had $142 and Jurkiewitz had $12 secreted in his underwear. Both men are said to have admitted the holdup.

Chevrolet Hits Back At Ford

DETROIT, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—The Chevrolet division of the General Motors Corporation, chief competitor of the Ford Motor Company, will bring out a "complete new line of cars" on January 1, it was announced today by W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet company.

Production of the new model, Mr. Knudsen said, has been under way in the company's various assembly plants since December 12.

No details of what changes have been made nor of prices of the various body styles will be available, the announcement stated, until January 1.

SHARPSVILLE FURNACE WORKS TO RESUME

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 23.—The Sharpsville Furnace Company plant will resume operations next Tuesday after having been closed four months. About 80 men are employed.

PREPARE BUNDLES FOR DISTRIBUTION

Wearing apparel of every description for men, women and children was sent in by Sun-Tele readers for destitute miners of Western Pennsylvania. Women at the Acmetonia barracks are shown above looking over their allotment preparatory to distribution today.

ANNA, MARIE, JANET AND JOHNNIE

Little Anna and Marie Romanoff have found something in chapeaux that seems to interest them. Anna thinks Marie's hat is more becoming with the brim turned up. Their little friend, Janet Hinkleman, who prefers derbies, thinks it should be turned down, while Johnnie Schmaltzmann sticks to a stocking cap.

MARRIAGE TODAY

No longer does the male seek his life mate by force. They meet in business as equals, perhaps, and their life union is based on an understanding certainly more thorough, if less romantic than that of a generation past.

PARTING WAYS STARTS DRIVE

A chance for Pittsburghers to help in the re-establishing of ex-convicts as good citizens is offered in the annual membership drive of the Parting of the Ways Home, East Stockton avenue, North Side, which is now being conducted. Any amount donated for the home entitles the donor to a membership in the organization that has done much for helping the men released from prison. The home is entirely dependent upon public donations.

GRISE FILES NEW SUITS AGAINST RAIDERS

Another chapter was written in the story of wrecking of the Grise Hotel, Eleventh street, by police officers, when Oliver Grise filed information today against two lieutenants and four patrolmen, charging malicious mischief and rioting.

The defendants named were Lieuts. Philip Marmo and John Schnurr and the patrolmen were Joseph Lynch, William Rasmus, Dan Owens and William Kessler. They are the officers against whom Grise filed a $20,000 damage suit yesterday. The new charges were brought before Justice of the Peace George B. Shields of Wilkinsburg.

Some six weeks ago the officers raided Grise's hotel as an alleged disorderly house and Grise later was discharged. But in the raid, Grise contends, the raiders ruined just about everything in the hotel than could be smashed.

Christmas Elopers Few, Cumberland Taxi Men Moan

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 23.—Taxi drivers are complaining that business is unusually slow because of the failure of the usual Christmas crop of elopers.

Besides, the brides are so economical these days, that they cut all expenses, in many cases insisting on inexpensive wedding rings. Worst of all, many of the elopers come in their own cars.

HELD AS BAD CHECK PASSER

Harrison Quay Weaver, a private detective, yesterday was arrested by city detectives in connection with the passing of worthless checks in Driftwood, Pa., and was lodged in the Central Police Station pending further information from Driftwood. Until yesterday, Weaver was at liberty in $2,500 bail after being held for court on charges of keeping a disorderly house, perjury and misrepresenting himself.

Weaver denied he had ever been in Driftwood and said that he was innocent of the "bad check" charge against him.

M'GOUGH SEEKS SLEUTH PERMIT

Edwin T. McGough, a veteran member of the city detective force and a former captain in the division, filed a petition before Judge James R. McFarlane in Quarter Sessions Court, asking permission to operate a private detective agency. McGough, who entered the police department in 1908, is eligible to retire on a pension next February. He is credited with knowing more pickpockets than any other police official in the country. He has frequently been "borrowed" by other cities and towns on the occasion of large gatherings to keep down thefts.

Attorney B. L. Steinberg, assistant city solicitor, presented the petition and the court fixed December 30 for a hearing.

Night Coughs Quickly Relieved

Stopped in 15 Minutes with Thoxine

Most coughing is caused by an irritated, inflamed throat or bronchial tubes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. But a famous physician's prescription recently discovered called Thoxine goes direct to the cause, relieves the inflamed membranes and stops the cough almost instantly. One swallow does the work, and the remarkable thing about it is that it contains no dope, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Pleasant tasting. Safe for children. Once used the whole family will rely on it. 35c., 60c. and $1.00. At all druggists.

Things to Fit Into The Christmas Stocking

. . . And when it is emptied Christmas morning . . . each new thing brings forth another squeal of delight! Here are some suggestions for the "just one more" joy that makes it a hilarious occasion:

The stocking itself . . . why shouldn't Santa change it to a new pair of wool golf socks in typical masculine patterns, $1.15 to $4.75. Or girls' of English ribbed rayon, 75c. Main Floor.

A strap watch to thrill any girl or boy. Best American and Swiss makes, $10.00 to $18.50. Main Floor.

A handkerchief or two, of fine linen, white or with colored threads and initials. Or with amusing printed borders. 15c and 25c each. Main Floor.

Imported knit caps for skating, sledding and other outdoor sports. Various styles and shapes; from Baby to the 16-year-old girl. 85c to $3.95. Third Floor.

Baby Shoes . . . of white kid, all embroidered . . . of tan or beige elk. Sizes up to one and a half years. $1.00 and $2.00. Third Floor.

Babies' Water Bottles . . . daintily covered with pink and blue satin . . . or hand-painted, uncovered. $1.50. Third Floor.

An extra doll, its head sticking out of the top maybe? Tiny ones in many styles, dressed or undressed, 25c to $1.00. Seventh Floor.

Miniature kitchen utensils . . . egg beaters . . . tea kettles . . . percolators . . .frying pans . . . stew pots . . of aluminum. 10c to $1.50. Seventh Floor.

Military Brushes, Junior edition. Two wee ones—all of two inches long!—decorated with rosebuds. $1.50. Third Floor.

Toy animals . . . a regular menagerie! Start or add to a child's collection with one in his stocking. 65c to $1.50. Seventh Floor.

Candy Novelties for the Christmas tree or the Christmas stockings. Chocolates in fancy shapes and covered with foil, or clear candy. 5c to 50c. Seventh Floor.

Fountain Pens. Considering the hard use youngsters give them, Ingersolls are a good choice...$1.00 and $1.50. Main Floor.

Conklin Pencils. Attractively finished untarnishable metal. The kind that don't have to be sharpened. $1.00. Main Floor.

Evening

Bouffant frocks of taffeta, fluttering frocks of chiffon, and clinging models of transparent velvet—frocks for dances both formal and informal, and frocks simple enough for dinners.

Sketched—a dance frock of changeable gros de londres, in yellow with an overcast of pink, with flounces of yellow tulle. $25.00.

Picturesque period frocks of taffeta are included in the range from $25.00 to $39.50.

Daytime

Tea frocks of chiffon, with delightful movement in their pleated skirts and scarfs; frocks of georgette, silk crepes, satin, and the very new silk prints.

Pictured—a tea frock of hydrangea blue chiffon, finished with metal nailheads. $29.50.

Also pictured—a frock of featherweight tweed in honey-beige with screen check of brown, scarf finish of crepe de chine in two shades of brown. $25.00.

Frocks for the Holidays

All Types for Misses, at $25.00 to $39.50

WANT a gay little frock for next week's dances, a tea frock for important afternoons, or a sports type frock of featherweight tweed for a week-end house party or for mornings of skating? Every type of frock that the holidays will call for, is in The Misses' Shop, at this price range.

—Horne's, Second Floor—

Beautiful Evening Footwear

In Metal Effects and Satin

Open-shank sandals of gold or silver kid, $18.50.

A similar model of colored metal brocade, with twisted t-strap of metal kid, $22.50.

A slipper of fine, moired brocade in silver or gold, $12.50.

A striking sandal, in folly red, bisque or black; metal kid trimmed, $20.00.

Velvet slippers, in hydrangea blue, coral or red, $16.50.

A striking satin sandal, in folly red, bisque or black; metal kid trimmed, $20.00.

—Horne's, Second Floor—

New Silk Hats
$10.00

As winter days advance, hats grow lighter of fabric, more subtle of coloring, more brilliant in trimming. Among the very new arrivals are hats of silk, at this price.

Of bengaline in rose, French blue, gray and almond, with close stitchings of silver thread, and trimmings of brilliant ornaments.

The sophisticated black hat appears in satin, and in satin combined with bengaline—pert, little models finished with ornaments of rhinestones or brilliants.

—Horne's, Fourth Floor—

Costume Flowers

Which shall it be?—a single flower of your favorite variety, a bunch of violets in natural or "off" shade, or a nosegay of mixed flowers—worn on your frock, or tucked in the fur trimming of your coat. 25c to $3.50.

—Horne's, Fourth Floor—

Women's Fine Fur Coats

A Varied Collection

$450.00

This is a moderate price for a fur coat of superior Horne quality, and the following are suggested as gift possibilities or for personal choice, at this figure:

Misses' coats of Gray Squirrel, Gray Caracul, and Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat) with gray squirrel trimming.

Women's coats of Brown Caracul with matching fox trimming. Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat) with trimming of cocoa squirrel or kolinsky, and Brown Mole trimmed with mink tails.

Tomorrow, 9 to 9:30 A. M.

Christmas Carols

By a Chorus of 100

Tomorrow's program will include a tenor solo by Will Rhodes, "Go Tell It On the Mountains." Harvey Gaul, the composer, will play the accompaniment.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend this Christmas entertainment Saturday morning at the above hour, which will be given from the Balcony overlooking the Main Floor; or hear it over the radio through Station KDKA.

Candy for Christmas

Tea Room chocolates . . . made of the best ingredients, and including a number of unusual fillings. You may have them packed to your personal order in boxes of any size. Special holiday wrappers have been provided. Tea Room Chocolates, 80c, $1.00 and $1.25 pound.

The Week-End Special

A layer of assorted chocolates and one of cream almonds, milk chocolate covered raisins, and spiced jelly drops. The TWO POUNDS, $1.00.

Assorted Salted Nuts, special, $1.25 pound.

—Horne's, Balcony—

Tea Room Fruit Cakes

Fruit cake that's just full of plums and things! Properly aged . . . the kind of fruit cake that's all too seldom met with, but always met with joy! One, two and three-pound sizes, $1.50 pound.

—Horne's, Main Floor—

Books

Now, as always, there are thousands of titles assembled on the shelves of the Book Shop...and there's a book to end almost every gift quest! The greatly increased size of the department, and the large, well-trained sales staff, will stand the gift-seeker in good stead this final day.

—Horne's, Main Floor—

Lingerie

Bandeau sets that are frivolously lacy. Some of the bandeaux almost entirely of lace. The matching step-ins having yoke front or plain elastic. Peach or flesh only. Misses' sizes, $2.95.

Bloomer sets are equally feminine with much lace ruffling the elastic cuff and the shaped bandeau. The bloomer is a shortie. Nile, peach, white or flesh. Misses sizes, $5.00.

Glove silk vests and matching bloomers for those who wish the strictly tailored. And all branded "Formold," exclusive with Horne's. Flesh, white or roseleaf (pinky yellow). 5 to 9 sizes in bloomers, 34 to 44 in vests. Vests, $2.95. Bloomers, $3.95.

—Horne's, Third Floor—

Chiffon Stockings

Chiffon, by all odds the most popular stocking of the hour, is therefore one of high gift appeal. The "Horne Special" chiffon has had an unusual demand.

Silk from toe to its much desired picot edge welt. And a chiffon of true quality and even transparency. Colors of which there are at least a score and sizes entirely complete. $2.00.

Other chiffons, $1.75 to $5.75.

—Horne's, Main Floor—

Gifts to Compliment Her Vanity

Perfumes: Delicate, lightsome flower scents . . . mysterious, Oriental odors . . . Scents of the day and of the night . . . perfumes for her hair, her lips, her eyelids . . . ensembles of perfumes to harmonize with different colors and costumes . . . A veritable garden of gifts, presenting a rare opportunity to those discriminating ones who would manifest thoughtfulness and taste in the presents they give.

Vanities: Makers of fine cosmetics vie with one another in the creation of distinguished containers for their powder, rouge, and lipsticks. It would be difficult to find a woman who would fail to tuck such a gift immediately and gratefully into her bag.

Sets by Coty: Attractive boxes, lined with silk, containing various combinations of Coty's fine toiletries—perfume, toilet water, powder, sachet, compact—in one of the popular Coty scents: L'Origan, Chypre, Emeraude, Paris, or Rose Jacqueminot, $4.50 to $15.00.

—Horne's, Main Floor—

Pretty Plaid Wool Blankets

One of the best blankets we know of for the money. Every bit of them wool, soft, warm and light; woven in pretty block plaids.

They come in rose, blue, gray, tan, gold, lavender, green, or black, with white; sateen bound in color to match plaid; and in red and black. Size 66x80 inches. A pair of them would make a splendid and welcome gift. $7.75 pair.

CARS MEET DISASTER ON ICE

GROCERIES SKID RIGHT INTO MINERS' HOMES

Truck and coupe at the bottom of the hill skidded off the river road above Montrose and over the rock-strewn hillside. Two men riding in the coupe were uninjured. The truck was headed for upriver towns with a load of groceries yesterday morning. It swung clear around and headed back to town, turning over on its side against the telegraph pole. Driver and helper jumped to safety and residents of the district, many of them miners out of work, knew their groceries and helped themselves.

EVERY DAY NOW IS BUNDLE DAY FOR MINERS

The impetus given the relief movement for the striking miners' destitute families by The Sun-Telegraph's Bundle Day last Tuesday kept it going today. Messages were received that bundles awaited the collectors at the police station in Carrick, at an East Liberty store, and at other places. At United Mine Workers' headquarters in the Columbia Building several checks for relief were received, including one for $1,000.

Philip Murray, international vice president, said clothing had been delivered to nearly every camp in the district within 36 hours after the bundles deposited at the fire engine houses had been delivered to relief headquarters at 1203 Fifth avenue.

Mr. Murray added that while many bundles were contributed for humanitarian reasons without regard to the merits of the strike, he was convinced that public opinion is on the side of the strikers in the controversy. Business men, he said, were urging that the coal companies give the union program a trial. The problem, Mr. Murray added, was not so much one of wages as of stabilization of the industry, and, even if the operators should succeed in beating down wages, they would not help themselves any so long as the present uncertainties in the matter of supply and demand continue in the coal business.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph H. Urmy, chairman of the social service commission of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ, said today that an appeal to the public for funds for the miners' relief probably would be published on Sunday.

Residents of West Francis street, Brentwood, under the leadership of Mrs. William J. Krauss and Mrs. John Grabowsky, assisted by contributions from Brentwood merchants, packed 50 baskets of staple groceries and distributed them among needy miners. Fifty bundles of clothing also were distributed.

Reward, Lecture Tour Await 'Fox's' Captors

By International News Service

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23. — Sudden and unexpected wealth looms for Chief of Police Tom Gurdane and State Traffic Sergeant Buck Lieuallin as the result of their capture, near Pendleton yesterday, of William Edward Hickman.

In addition to the $100,000 reward offered for the youthful kidnaper of Marian Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles girl, the two also are looking over offers from four theater companies.

One of these is for $3,500 each for them to appear on a lecture contract in Hollywood Theater. The offer reads:

"Congratulations on the capture of Hickman. This is to formally offer you a contract for yourself and officers who assisted you in the capture. Lecture contracts of $3,000 week for six months, also contract for exclusive articles on same. Answer collect at once. No. 1605 Cahuenga avenue, Hollywood."

The wire was signed Sherill & Friedman, Inc.

In addition to the money offers scores of telegrams were pouring into Pendleton, overwhelming the officers with praise for their work.

Both Lieuallin and Gurdane were cautious in regard to these advances. They declared they did not know whether they would accept or not. But friends confidently expect them to do so.

Pendleton today is swarming with newspapermen and photographers. First reels taken of Hickman are at a premium.

Toy Mission to Play Santa Tomorrow

Conductors, motormen and car barn employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, as well as the officials, who so successfully played Santa Claus with The Sun-Tele Auxiliary of the Toy Mission, closed their labors yesterday after collecting truckloads of playthings which tomorrow will be distributed to poor children in Pittsburgh at the Mission headquarters, Ross and Diamond streets. Gifts are still being received at the various agencies of The Sun-Tele Auxiliary.

The street railway men received the packages of toys from all districts where the trolleys operate and stored them in the carbarns until collected by The Sun-Tele trucks. The packages were handled deftly and promptly and all who made donations to the Mission through the street cars have been assured that the gifts reached their destinations in good order.

"We had a Merry Christmas every day and nearly every night," said a conductor who reports to the Keating barn. "It meant a little extra work and a good deal of extra care, but it was worth it. Handling toys that you know are going to make poor kids happy is as pleasant a duty as you could ask for in the holiday season. Every time we had a load of toys the passengers seemed to be in an especially good humor."

W. H. Boyce, commercial manager, and Joseph B. Donley, director of public relations of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, who directed the collections of toys, said today that the service to the Toy Mission had been regarded by the patrons of the trolleys as an especial accommodation and a source of pleasure to the men who participated in the work.

At the Mission appeals are still being made for toys and books suitable for boys and girls between 9 and 14 years, or for cash for the purchase of new toys.

PLAN PLANE FOR COX FLIGHT

Plans for the construction of the airplane for the proposed flight of the Rev. James R. Cox from Pittsburgh to Rome were discussed yesterday at a conference between the Rev. Cox and Lieut. Frank Ambrose, Army reserve pilot, and George L. McCook, of Aspinwall Heights, who plans to go as a passenger.

McCook offered $5,000 to aid in the financing of the flight. The Rev. Cox also offered financial aid. Various three-motored planes will be inspected during the next few weeks to determine the type to be used.

WORK OF RAISING S-4 HULK TO GO ON UNCHECKED

Deny Navy Will Quit Work Until Spring

By International News Service.

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—Denial of the widespread report that the Navy was going to give up until spring the work of raising the sunken submarine S-4 and her 40 dead, was made at Charlestown Navy Yard this afternoon by Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commanding the Third Naval District.

Rear Admiral Andrews was told by Rear Admiral Hughes, chief of operations in Washington, that the Navy would "continue the work as long as necessary." This means, in the opinion of the district commander, until the S-4 is raised and gives up her dead. The work may be halted temporarily for a few days at a time by gales, but work will immediately be resumed in the opinion of Rear Admiral Andrews.

Air screens—hose with holes into which air is pumped—are being thrown around the submarine on the northwest side. The coast protecting the S-4 on the north and northeast. Hazardous work is ahead in raising the submersible once the divers have chains around her and more hazardous work will come when the rolling, bobbing pontoons are in place.

Five hundred and more naval men, who for a year have been looking forward to Christmas leave to visit home, will be kept on with the grim task off Provincetown.

"We are going ahead as fast as we can until the weather halts us or the Navy Department calls off operations," said Admiral Frank H. Brumby, in charge of the salvage fleet. "This is now purely a salvage job and not a rescue job."

A wintry storm is due off Cape Cod here within the next few days.

The following report was transmitted to the Navy Department today by Admiral Brumby:

"Divers have begun working a tunnel under the bow of the S-4 about at frame 19 to pass receiving line, and this work will proceed with all available personnel divided into two watches, so that work may not cease while the weather holds. Divers are working in pairs, with one using a blow hose while the other holds a light and stands by."

The pumping of oxygen into the torpedo compartment where the six surviving members of the crew once signaled for help continued today. Although no hope is held that any might still be alive, officials said the pumping would go on until the weather halted salvage operations.

Tomorrow will mark a week since the S-4 was rammed to the bottom off Woodend by the coast guard cutter Paulding. For four days after the tragedy six members of the crew remained alive and signaled for help from the torpedo compartment. A lashing gale and a drop in temperature prevented divers from going below. Meanwhile, the messages from the survivors ceased.

Although hope of rescuing the members of the submarine's crew has fled, there is hourly drama in the dangers undergone by the Navy divers as they swirl about the wrecked submersible 102 feet below the icy waters.

For the most part these detectives of the deep pass off their experiences as only part of the day's work. F. G. Michaels, veteran Navy diver, is recovering in a Boston hospital after a narrow "squeak" when he became entangled in the lines in the early days of rescue effort. Only the heroism of his comrade, Tom Eadie, saved his life. The latter will be recommended for a citation, Navy officers said.

J. E. Ingram, during the last few hours of work in the depths, suffered a leak in his diving suit. It was necessary to jerk him quickly from the water. Ordinarily, divers are raised to the surface gradually, due to the terrific pressure of the water. A quick jerk to the surface lays a diver open to an aggravated attack of "the bends," main hazard of a diver's life.

THE DIVORCE MILL

How her three years of married life were spent dodging dishes and other household equipment hurled at her by her husband, Daniel J. Blank, 22, was told yesterday by Mrs. Susan M. Blanck, 21, of Tioga street, to Judge Harry H. Rowand. She also testified her husband attempted to bite her.

WOMAN IN ATTIC

Arriving home unexpectedly, Mrs. Anna M. Murhaut, of East Broadway, McKeesport, found another woman hiding in the attic of their home, Mrs. Murhaut testified yesterday in her divorce hearing against her husband, Frank E. Murhaut, before Judge James H. Gray. Seeing the other woman's wraps on a chair, Mrs. Murhaut searched the house and found her hiding in the garret. Her husband denied that his visitor was in the house for anything improper.

2 CRASHES IN 2 HOURS—BUT WOMAN ISN'T HURT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 23.—Motoring to Sunbury for the holidays, Mrs. L. A. Cook, 28, Emporia, Kan., figured in two auto accidents in two hours and escaped injuries. When the car driven by her husband hit another on the highway near here, Mrs. Cook accepted a lift to Latrobe from Charles D. Fuller. They had gone only a few miles when Fuller's car overturned on the icy road.

ROBBERS SCARED AWAY BY DOG

A police dog saved the home of J. S. Stewart and J. F. Bierer, of 3824 Perrysville avenue, North Side, from burglars when his barking became so loud that the thieves hurried away empty-handed. The robbers gained entrance to the duplex occupied by the two families through the cellar.

FIVE COUPLES SEEK TO SEVER MARITAL KNOT

The following libels in divorce have been filed in Common Pleas Court: Leo F. Burke against Lulu Ruth Burke, Frank B. Caliver against Amy E. Caliver, George S. Maire against Carrie Maire, Carrol C. Miller against Iris L. Miller, Bert F. Smith against Catherine Smith.

Motherless Nine Will Know There Is a Santa

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Dec. 23.—Yes, there is a Santa Claus. At least nine motherless children of Frank Precipio, St. Clairsville (O.) coal miner, will say so Christmas morning.

George R. Wilson of this place saw a picture of the Precipio family in a newspaper and read that their mother is dead, that their father is $1,000 in debt and that the children are wearing last year's clothes and lack shoes. He sent nine pairs of shoes, a big box of candy and toys to the father of the family to be distributed Christmas morning.

20 EXTRA CLERKS FOR CONNELLSVILLE MAIL

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 23.—Postmaster W. S. Bebanna has added 20 extra persons to the postoffice staff to keep the Christmas mail moving. The mail is 12 per cent heavier than a year ago, he announced.

TRIBUTE PAID GEN. MILLER

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 23.—With two ministers officiating and scores of friends crowding the First Baptist Church, funeral services for General Charles Miller, 84-year-old oil man, were held yesterday. The Rev. S. S. Clark, of Franklin, and the Rev. Clarence A. Adams, D. D., State College, had charge. Knights Templar kept guard over the body, and acted as pall-bearers. Honorary pall-bearers included members of the G. A. R. post which General Miller had commanded for 37 years, and the deacons and trustees of the Baptist church, of which he had been a founder and member for 54 years. A considerable number of officials from Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago, representing firms in which General Miller had been interested, were represented at the funeral.

Sore throat while you wait

Working in stuffy quarters, sleeping in over-heated homes, mingling with crowds and using appliances that others constantly use, people run an almost constant risk of a cold or sore throat—or worse.

At the first sign of either, use Listerine, the safe antiseptic, full strength. Gargle with it repeatedly. Rinse your mouth with it. Employ it occasionally as a nasal douche.

These simple measures may be the means of sparing you a trying—and possibly—a costly and painful siege of illness. In thousands of homes Listerine has checked colds and sore throats before they had a chance to become serious.

Being antiseptic, Listerine immediately attacks the countless disease-producing bacteria that lodge in the nose, mouth, and throat waiting until body resistance is low to strike.

Remember that while you are thus helping Nature ward off disease, you are also putting yourself on the polite side socially, for Listerine, as you know, ends halitosis (unpleasant breath). Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

CHRISTMAS FETE TO BE HELD AT EMSWORTH

Emsworth borough, through the efforts of organizations in the district, will hold a fete tomorrow night, Christmas Eve, at the community Christmas tree erected in front of the Borough Hall. A chorus composed of borough residents will sing Christmas carols and the gathering will be addressed by Alexander Stewart, burgess.

The community Christmas tree idea was developed at the instigation of the Women's Civic Club of Emsworth. A committee formed of mothers will be in charge of the event, which will be presided over by Mrs. H. E. Gingrich, president of the Civic Club.

The affair has been financed by the Civic Club, the Parent-Teacher's Association, the Sacred Heart School, Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary, Emsworth firemen and the Mothers of Democracy.

MOTHER JAILED WITH SON, GIRL

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Dec. 23.—Mrs. Adelsa Ross, 423 Lowell street, joined her son and daughter in jail last night. Police searching the house for goods alleged to have been stolen by John Ross, 19, and his sister, Inez, 21, arrested on shoplifting charges, found 220 gallons of wine in the Ross home.

Sylvester Furio, 39, and Gios Costlotto, 41, said to belong to the same gang, are in jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of robbing a local jewelry store.

Urge Final Avalanche Of Gifts to Needy

The campaign which The Sun-Telegraph has been conducting to collect a Christmas fund for the relief of the Twenty Neediest Cases of poverty in Pittsburgh will be terminated tomorrow. There remains ample time to contribute, but donors dare not delay longer if their offerings are to count as a Christmas gift.

The contributions yesterday were mostly for small sums. If other persons in great numbers would follow this example and give only a dollar or two—if that is all they feel they can afford—the result would be the same as if a few persons had contributed large sums. Moreover, it would be a more striking demonstration of the philanthropic Pittsburgh spirit if the fund should be collected from a multitude of small givers. It is hoped that there will be an avalance of small gifts today and tomorrow.

The money is needed to enable an aged couple to spend their last years together, to provide for the necessities of little children whose fathers have died or suffered some great misfortune which renders them temporarily incapable of maintaining their homes, to care for the necessities of a crippled war veteran and his wife and children—to relieve the distress, in brief, of the most destitute persons in the city.

The Twenty Neediest Cases have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America.

Checks and money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, or if preferred, to one of the societies named.

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sun-Telegraph of November 27.

One case was then repeated each day. All cases are being described for the third time this week. Here are cases Nos. 16, 17 and 18:

Case No. 16

Tuberculosis is a grim specter when it attacks the husband and father and incapacitates him. Let it be linked with rheumatism in the mother and destitution is complete. M and T have four children who must go to school, whatever the cost. That was part of the reason the S family came to America, to secure education for the children.

Mr. S, a laborer, has been out of work for 11 months. Friends have paid the rent at times. The Catholic Charities supplies a weekly grocery order of $5. They are still wanting gas for light and heat, shoes, clothing, insurance and carfare for he must return to the Tuberculosis Hospital for observation once a month.

In two or three years things may be better. Jennie will be able to work she is only 13 now. Frank and Gerald will be able to work after school.

(Reported by the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh).

Case No. 17

Deserted by her husband two years ago, just four months before Mildred was born, this little woman has been struggling to support her family of four children by cleaning offices evenings.

George, who was 11 at the time his father left them, sells papers in the evenings. For a time he gave his mother a great deal of worry because of the bad associates he met who led him astray. Now George has a Big Brother who is helping him to get straightened out. He is attending school regularly and is again trying to help his mother support his three little sisters, 10, 8 and 2.

Helen, 10, is "little mother" of the family while "Mother" is at work, while Jane helps by watching Mildred until Helen puts her to bed.

(Reported by the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh.)

Case No. 18

These children lived in constant fear of a drunken, abusive father until he disappeared about two months ago. Conditions were so bad that Mrs. K sanctioned the marriage of her 14-year-old daughter because the girl had no peace or comfort at home.

Now that Mr. K is gone, the children can be happy with their mother, who tries hard to take good care of them. But they must have shelter, food and clothing and there is no one in the family able to provide these things. Mrs. K is in a very serious physical condition and should go to the hospital. She will not consent to do this until she knows satisfactory arrangements have been made for their care.

(Reported by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor.)

Cases Nos. 19 and 20 will be described tomorrow.

DIDN'T KILL MARIAN, "LIKED HER," KIDNAPER SAYS

him what for, so in one of our holdups I would get out and he would drive the car. He would sit in the car and I would get the money and whatever he wanted and go out and then he would drive away. I really had not intended being a crook, but you will find out soon enough you will get caught, but because I wanted to go back to Kansas City and go to work and save enough money to go to college, Park College, near Kansas City, I did it.

"I thought if I could get enough money to go to the school and by working some during the day, an hour or two every day, in that way I could pay the tuition. I thought if I could save a thousand dollars I could start next September and no matter how I got it I would go straight from then on.

Plan Kidnaping

"This man asked me what I thought of kidnaping someone and I thought I wouldn't mind doing it. I happened to remember that Mr. Parker had a daughter, because in working at the bank, this girl came with him. I didn't know just what date it was. I was there in the bank several days and I noticed especially and I remember it was his daughter because she was his favorite and he would take her down and buy her lunch, and she was around the bank like she was a big man. I didn't think of her, however, before I thought of Mr. Haves who is chief teller at the First National Bank and I think he has a very young child. I thought of that first and thought he would be able to get the money from him much easier because he is a chief officer of the bank and handles hundreds of thousands of dollars. While I was in the bank I saw all the money shipments come in and used to go around the vaults and any place in the bank and knew practically everyone there.

Afraid of Baby

"In order to get this little girl, the younger one, I was afraid it would be harder to handle her. She was a baby and would probably cry. I thought either Mr. Haves or Parker would have sense enough, or I should say good judgment, enough to consider $1,500 an easy settlement in consideration of their own daughter. I meant no harm to either one, but I thought it would be easier to handle the older girl than a little child.

"So this man Cramer and I both went out and he wanted to see her and get a good look at her and I looked in the telephone book to see where Mr. Parker lived. I went to the house to see her and she came from school and I saw her riding around on a bicycle, but I didn't know she had a twin sister until Thursday morning.

"I parked by the house early so I could see her leave for school and could see which school she went into and it popped into my mind that if I went for her at the school I could get her that way.

"There was no plan, but I had been thinking about it and it popped into my head when I saw the girl that morning.

"I did not plan out the results ahead of that until I saw the girl that morning. And that afternoon I read in the papers how it all happened. I went and told the teacher that her father had been in an automobile accident and this other girl came over to see which one of the girls I wanted and I said I wanted the younger one. She looked younger, but it turned out they were twins, but she didn't question me anyway.

"They asked what was her first name so I told them I didn't remember, but I told them I worked at the bank. I didn't give my real name. I forgot the name I did give them. When they asked me which girl I wanted and I said the younger one they asked me if it was Marian. I said 'Yes, that's the one the father is calling for.' Then one of the other teachers went and got the girl and I saw that was the same girl I had seen in front of the house.

"When the girl got in the car with me she started asking questions about what had happened and how it happened and who hit him and I made answers to all of her questions. When we started back we just had a general conversation, talking about picture shows and merchants and school and anything that came up in conversation generally with people. We got so well and closely acquainted that I really kind of liked her. I couldn't look her in the face when I told her she was kidnaped as though nothing had happened.

Girl Remains Calm

"When I told her nothing had really happened to her father she didn't scream or worry or anything. She took it as calm as could be and I told her she could realize if I got caught what I would have to suffer and I would have to tie her nose and tie her mouth so she couldn't make any noise and she said 'Please don't do it, I will promise not to make any noise,' so I didn't tie her and we drove around all that afternoon and went to a show that night, even to a picture show, the Rialto Theater in Alhambra, and she didn't do or say anything much.

"I really didn't intend to do her any harm and here is where this other man's part of it played in. He was to have the hiding place for the girl and to keep her quiet and I was supposed to get the money.

"My partner only wanted two or three hundred dollars out of the fifteen hundred. He said he didn't want much money anyway. He seemed to like the idea of kidnaping the girl and holding her more than getting the money. Thursday, that night after the show, I met this man and he took the girl in charge. The next day I saw her. That was Friday evening.

"Well, I kept writing all those letters and had her to write a letter to her father making it seem like she was being treated badly and I don't know what he did, but she didn't seem to like this man and didn't want to go with him. Instead, she wanted to stay with me. But I couldn't do anything like that because we had to go through with the plans. Anyway, she wanted to go home as soon as possible and I thought if the father was willing to hand over the money, and he had it, it was perfectly all right and as soon as I got it over with the letter it would be for me anyway, so I called up her father and he said he had the money.

"We planned a meeting and that we were to meet on a certain street and then after I called up his house from a drug store between his home and the meeting place. I went up there and could watch him pass by so when I went and got in the car I sat there so I could watch for him. I came up and saw him and there were two cars driven closely together so I drove out on the side and followed him to the meeting place. They lived on Gramercy street which is just one block north and these two cars stopped. When I saw them I was absolutely certain they were detectives and they were going to try and trap us and I concluded to take the girl back and turn her over to the man again.

"I wrote them another letter then and this man suggested I was getting the time too near, but that would make it much safer so I made it for the appointed day anyway. They were making such a big search he was afraid they would find the girl.

Child Killed

"So on Saturday when he came to the apartment with this suitcase and showed me who it was I was sure surprised. He said the police were already suspicious of the place and he said she was crying and he tried to stop her or something like that and he figured that the safest way would be to go ahead and fix it that way and for me to keep my suit case in the car and to go to this place and if the police stopped me before I could get rid of it they might look at the suit case and never stop to open it. I thought that way might be all right. He had already gone ahead and opened it anyway so in this letter I told the girl's father if I were paid before 6 o'clock that night that his daughter would still be alive and I didn't find out until after 6 o'clock when my partner came up to the apartment that she wasn't.

"Even after I had written this letter, no matter whether she was alive or not, I thought he wanted his daughter anyway, no matter what condition she was in so I went ahead and called him up and planned the meeting place. He was there all right. If he had not brought the detectives with him the night before he would have gotten her back.

"And if this fellow had not killed her it would have come out all right as we had planned. I'm sure she didn't want to die because when she was with me she said 'I wonder what the school kids will say when I go back to school. They will want to know what I did and everything.'

"Sure Liked Her"

"I am terribly sorry she was killed because I sure liked her."

Tears interrupted the confessed kidnaper here.

When the chief of police asked Hickman for a description of the man who is supposed to have killed her, "The Fox" answered:

"He was about five feet, eight or nine inches tall and had almost black hair. I don't remember the color of his eyes, but as far as I remember I think he had been leading an impure life. He had a sore upon his chin, but that might have been from the way he had been eating. The times I saw him when I picked him up he had a kind of gray overcoat and he just had the one suit. It was kind of tan or brown. He had a kind of rough face.

"He looked not to be more than over 26, but he looked older because I think he had been leading a hard life.

"He wouldn't tell me where he was staying, though he was to have his part in the plan and I my part. Crooks sometimes will go back on each other if another one knew that the other one did it makes everything safer and less dangerous if we didn't know where each other stayed, he told me, so I don't know where he kept himself.

"He didn't stay in the same apartment I did. I was there all by myself. I don't know whether the woman had anything to do with it or not. Her first name was June and I think her other name was Dunning. She weighed about 125 or 130 pounds I guess, and was about 25 or 26 years old. I knew they appeared to be a well matched couple."

"You don't know what address they had?" Chief of Police Gurdane asked the kidnaper.

Pair Mystery

"I never did know," Hickman declared. "You see, in the condition I was, a crook, I hadn't been used to friends when I picked them up. I had been alone quite a time anyway. I had been to a good many places, Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., and other places before I came out to the coast."

"Did you know where to meet him or to call him?" Gurdane asked.

"No, we always planned to meet at places. I didn't have any address of either of them. And the last time I saw him was when he brought the suit case up to the apartment and he told me when I got the money, that if I got it to go up to San Francisco as soon as I could safely get away, as the police were awfully suspicious here anyway.

"One thing that happened Sunday morning was that about 200 detectives came up to the apartment and looked over the place and started searching it. One of the fellows had the name of the apartment written on a paper and they searched every place. When they came to my apartment I was singing and playing the phonograph. The detectives came in and looked around, but didn't express any suspicion of me at all and I went out in the hallway and talked to seven or eight of the best detectives in Los Angeles. I asked them if there was anything I could do, but of course there was nothing. They searched my apartment and then left. It was quite interesting," the kidnaper said.

Body Scattered

"He had the girl or part of the effects of the girl when he came up to the apartment?" Gurdane asked.

"Yes, sir. I guess he threw the other parts away where they said they were thrown away. The only part he had were—well—she was cut right across the middle of the body and her arms were fixed up and he had put her dress on her. He had her dress and a little sweater thrown on her face and of course she was dead. The way the mouth was set it didn't look very death-like the way he had fixed it. He had some little threads fixed through her eyebrows which seemed to hold her eyes open.

"He opened the suitcase so I could see what he had. That happened right in my apartment. When I saw what he had I let out a yell of surprise and wanted to know why he did a thing like that. It was quite a shock to me because when he came in I asked him where she was. He was supposed to bring her up to the apartment.

"When he came in with the suitcase and I asked him that, he kind of grinned and set the suitcase down on the sofa and opened it up. I have already told you what I saw and everything.

Escapes

"When I got the money I was supposed to make as quick a getaway as I could and meet him at the Harold Hotel in Frisco. I forgot just where that is located. Cramer told me where it was, but I forgot the name of the street. He said he knew where it was and that if I got to the hotel he would be there.

"I got the money and beat it as quick as I could and left the car in a parking station, where the police found it later. That was on Grant street. I went back to the apartment and got my things together and the next morning as one of the policemen came up there to search it, that made me glad to go away quicker, for then I took first all evidence of the guns in one package and went down and checked them at a place. I left most of my stuff and some little clothes and some other articles in the apartment, a slicker and a pair of overshoes. I put the stuff all in one case and took that and some of my other things and checked them at the place. I then went to a show and after that I went out in Hollywood to get this Hudson. Then I just came back to the station and put these grips in there and these guns and drove right away for San Francisco. I was stopped three times before I got through and questioned by policemen, but none of them suspected me at all.

Wanted Mother

"There was only one thing I could do and that was to go ahead. I knew if they stopped me and questioned me after they had my pictures and fingerprints that would positively identify me, but I was taking that big chance and I was hitting easy, but I thought I could easily reach Salt Lake and from Salt Lake I was going into Kansas City to see my mother. I noticed in one of the papers that she and one of the former chiefs of police had written a letter and published it in the papers telling me to let her know where I was and they would help me out. That meant they would see I was treated fairly. I guess they thought as long as the police had my fingerprints my mother thought I was not going to get away.

"I stopped at the hotel Kramer told me to over-night in San Francisco. I got there Monday and stayed there Monday night and Tuesday morning I sat right around the hotel all day. I went out and got a paper Tuesday morning and saw in big lines my own name and that they had my fingerprints and had evidence that would convict me beyond a doubt of the crime and I thought I was just an ace and the only thing I could do was to protect myself and get away if I got an opportunity, so I drove to Seattle.

"I thought I dodged the police at Davis. I picked up a man there

Mexico Gives Honors To Lindy's Mother

By International News Service

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 23.—Mexico, officially and privately, got down today to the joyful business of showing Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh honors due to the mother of the young American who has captivated Mexican hearts ever since he arrived. Official welcomes and trips through the city were planned.

Just before she retired last night, Mrs. Lindbergh was treated to a neat gesture of Latin gallantry. A group of students from the preparatory and professional schools in the city, some carrying guitars and mandolins, ensconced themselves beneath the window.

Then those inside the building heard the notes of the instruments and the soft voices of the students as they serenaded the mother of the young "Americano."

With her son, Mrs. Lindbergh stepped out on the balcony and acknowledged the compliment. Before she went in again, she tossed a rose to the serenaders, who spent the next 10 minutes or so scrambling wildly for the sweet favor.

Mrs. Lindberg arrived at Valbuena Field yesterday afternoon from Tampico in a giant tri-motored Ford air liner. She was immediately officially welcomed by Gen. Jose Alvarez, chief of staff to President Calles, and then taken in the ambassadorial automobile to the American embassy.

While Mrs. Lindbergh was landing, her son, in another plane, hovered over the field unable to descend due to the tremendous crowd which gathered about his mother's plane.

Henry Gives Will Car; Object of Envy

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 23.—Mr. Henry Ford told me he would make me a present of the first new car, and sure enough when I got here today here she is. It's the first one delivered for actual use, and believe me, I sure am using it. Nobody is looking at these Rolls Royces here in Beverly. Here is hoping that Mrs. Lindbergh has a good trip and lands in Mexico. She will get a great welcome. Her coming after Charley will be like a wonderful dessert after a great meal for them. They never saw a three-motored ship down there. Got to get back in my Ford.

BEAVER FALLS GAS STATION HELD UP

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 23.—While one member of a bandit gang sat in an automobile calling "plug him," two confederates held up H. B. Javens, of the Silk Gasoline Service Station late last night and robbed him of $1,600 cash and $600 in checks.

Javens was closing for the night and had switched off the lights when two of the bandits entered and asked for a quart of oil. As he turned to get the oil, one of the robbers pressed a revolver against the back of Javens' neck and held it there while his pal rifled the cash register.

The three sped away, after the robbery, in the direction of Sharon. Javens told police. All were young and well dressed, he said.

DENIES KILLING GIRL

and he said there was a state road that cut off about 23 miles, but it was kind of rough and I was afraid if I was stopped it would be at the intersection. When that guy got out and ate a meal in the restaurant they were talking about the reward. I questioned some of them and found out as much as could what was going on and this man said he wanted to stop. I got in the car and drove right on to another place and was afraid they would stop me beyond the California state line.

"Pickups" Aid

"I had left San Francisco Tuesday morning, which would have made it Tuesday night at that rate. I picked up two other fellows at Dunsmuir. I mentioned the kidnaping and it seems they had heard a lot about it and I acted kind of surprised. There were no more officers north of here.

"I told these fellows I was going to Seattle to spend the holidays and that I had two quarts of booze in the suitcase in the back and was afraid if some officers were to search that they might find the liquor and get me for bootlegging, so that I was going to wait until after midnight to cross the line. When we got near the state line it was after 10 o'clock so we just stopped the car and waited until 12:15 a. m. It was this same Hudson all the time. Not a soul was near the border when we reached it. When we got into Oregon there were two officers who stopped the car. I was in the back almost asleep and these two fellows were in the front. The officers flashed a light at them and said all right, that we could pass. I left these two fellows at Portland Wednesday when we arrived there about noon. One of them was in the Merchant Marine.

"That left me in the car by myself and I left Portland and drove on to Seattle and picked up one other man before I got into Seattle. It was foggy, but he knew the road pretty well, and happened to be a sailor, too. He had finished his enlistment in the Navy and was going home. We joked awhile about the kidnaping business. I just listened to what this man's idea of what the kidnaper would look like."

Talks Way Out

"The first time I was stopped was right out of Los Angeles. I was rather scarey because they asked me questions. I told them I was driving to Ventura to get my mother. I told them my name was Beck. I had just stolen the car, but knew it couldn't be reported that quick and I had a license certificate with me, but didn't need to show it to them, for one of the fellows said to let me go ahead. A state officer stopped me near Ventura, but let me go without asking any questions. The third was just as I was pulling into Santa Barbara. He didn't stop to look, but just said hello and asked me how I was. I answered all right, fine or something like that. Then I asked him if he was still on that kidnaping case and he said, 'You bet your life we are.' I said I hope you get him. I said the same thing to all the rest of them on the way up from Los Angeles. I enjoyed the conversation and wasn't a bit scared, but when they got me I knew it was all up."

FIFTH AVENUE APARTMENT IS SOLD

An exchange deal has been closed in which Harry Weisz has sold to J. Solomon the Estelle apartment building at 2039-41 Fifth avenue, a four-story structure containing two stores and 13 apartments.

Weisz accepted in part payment a 15-room brick house at 940 West North avenue on 40x100 feet. He has already resold it to Ira Rack. The Union Real Estate Company were the brokers.

The same firm sold for Benjamin Leff to H. L. Lacey of Munhall, the former O. G. O'Brien holdings consisting of six brick houses on 134x147 feet at 115-25 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, three brick duplex dwellings at 203-07½ Rosa street, Wilkinsburg, for a consideration of $35,000. They also sold for M. B. Averbach to E. A. Lockman, a brick house and two garages at 1153 Chislett street, Eleventh Ward, at private terms.

W. R. Shoup has leased for the Gloeckler estate to the Hafner Coffee Company, A. B. Marcus & Co., and the Curry Croker Company three business buildings at 1621-25 Penn avenue, to be used in the wholesale mercantile business. The rental was approximately $50,000.

The Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh sold for A. R. Stewart, of Pasadena, Cal., to Saul Zionts, three frame houses at 1206-10 Arcena street, at private terms. Mr. Zionts resold the property to Tillie Gold.

Joseph T. Kelley, of Johnstown, Pa., has leased to Wise Shoes, Inc., of New York, a three-story and basement building at 502 Main street, Johnstown, for a term of years at a rental of $155,000. The Horner Real Estate Company of Pittsburgh closed the deal.

C. A. West, represented by R. M. Campbell, sold for J. A. West to Molly Fricberger, of Duquesne, a duplex at 2311 Eldridge street, for $18,500.

A new house on the north side of Reynolds street, near Murtland avenue, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold by John A. Kapp, Jr., to Harold G. Kushner for $22,000.

A property in Crafton boulevard near Noble avenue, Crafton, lot 60x159 feet, has been sold by Frank J. Gamble to Fred Pfeiffer, for a private consideration.

Building permit applications included:

Fourteenth Ward—Herman Kamin, five rows of brick and tile dwellings, rear Beacon street, $50,000; C. De Simone, extension, 7113 Reynolds street, $5,000.

Fifteenth Ward—F. M. Welfer, three brick dwellings, and two concrete block garages, 89-89 Kennebec street, $20,500.

Nineteenth Ward—T. C. Stephens, brick dwelling, 2439 Pioneer avenue, $8,500; Pennsylvania Builders' Company, addition, 1201 West Liberty avenue, $5,000.

WILL DEDICATE CITY TREE

Pittsburgh's community Christmas tree, erected in the rotunda of the City-County building, will be dedicated this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The dedicatory ceremonies will be brief. Councilman P. J. McArdle, who with Councilman Robert Garland started the community tree idea in Pittsburgh, will act as master of ceremonies. McArdle will introduce Mayor Charles H. Kline, who will turn the switch to illuminate the tree for the first time.

The Handel Choral Society, directed by Stad L. Jones, and a number of Pittsburgh's best soloists will sing. Similar exercises will be held tomorrow and Sunday evening at the same time. The tree was erected through the influence of Mayor Charles H. Kline. The program for this evening follows:

Chorus "Land of Hope and Glory"
Chorus "Joy to the World"
Solo "Now Born King" ..... Handel
(Mrs. Elsie Johns Wright.)
Chorus "Where is He that is Born"
Chorus "We Three Kings of Orient Are" ..... Hall
Solo Selected
(Mr. Anthony Jones.)
Chorus "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" ..... Mendelssohn
Solo "Star of Bethlehem" ..... Adams
(Mrs. Fred W. Jones.)
Chorus "Oh, Father Whose Almighty Power" ..... Handel
Chorus "Angels from the Realms of Glory" ..... Stuart
Duet "Silent Night"
(Mrs. Fred W. Jones.)
(Mrs. Harry Jones.)
Chorus and Audience "America"

EDUCATOR TO ENTER POLITICS

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of public schools, will remain in Chicago at the expiration of his term on January 8. He stated that he will spend his time at the public library in study. Most of his labors will be directed toward politics.

Mr. McAndrew was suspended by the school board at the instance of Mayor William Hale Thompson, who accused the schoolmaster of being in cahoots with the King of England.

Mr. McAndrew is reported to have received numerous offers to head schools in other cities.

'Too Cautious,' Says Judge, Must Pay Wife

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—There's such a thing as too much caution, Judge Jones decided when he ordered John Mahlstrom to pay his wife, Anna, $6 a week as long as he stays away from home.

Anna, who had him arrested for desertion, said that her first husband left for the Klondike 25 years ago and never returned.

After 18 years she married Mahlstrom.

"All of a sudden he decided to leave me," she added, "because he's afraid he'll be arrested for bigamy. I think he's too cautious."

John admitted to the judge that he is cautious and that he "didn't want to take any chances" when he learned of his wife's previous marriage, and left her.

Foundlings Wait for Santa

NO "PARDON SANTA" FOR PENNSYLVANIA CONVICTS

"PLEASE, SANTA!"
"You'll bring me my mama back, won't you?" little Jimmy asks as he calls Santa on the telephone.

"ARE YOU SURE HE'S COMING?"
Billy and Ed awake from a nap to demand first-hand information from the photographer. The babies were photographed at the St. Rosella Foundling Home and Maternity Hospital.

JUST A BIT SUSPICIOUS
This young fellow can't quite figure out what all this Christmas racket is about, anyhow.

15 TO 20 TAKEN IN EACH YEAR
Every year, according to Sisters of Charity in charge of the home, between 15 and 20 deserted babies are taken into the institution. Many of these find homes within a few months. Beside 37 foundlings the home has 50 infant boarders.

"GOODBY NOW!"
Obviously quite weary of this photographing business, Arthur starts for bed.

GIRL IS STABBED BY ATTACKER

Stabbed in the back while battling a Negro thug in Eloise street, near Irwin avenue, last night, Miss Anna Lyons, 19, of 5815 Holden street, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where four stitches were required to close the wound.

Police investigating the attack found the girl's picture in her purse, it having been published in connection with a forgery case in which Miss Lyons is said to have figured last October.

Miss Lyons told police that she was en route to the home of a friend when the Negro leaped at her in the darkness. Kicking and striking with her fists, she was warding off his attack when he lunged at her with a knife. As she fell he evidently became frightened and fled.

The picture and newspaper clipping which Miss Lyons carried revealed that she had been arrested in October with a girl companion on a charge of forgery. She was held for court trial by Alderman G. J. Anderson.

B. F. JONES IS IMPROVING

The condition of B. F. Jones, Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, who is seriously ill in his residence on Ridge avenue, North Side, was reported this morning as substantially unchanged, but with indications of slight improvement. Mr. Jones suffered a heart attack early this week.

ARREST MAN FOR SELLING RADIOS BOUGHT "ON TIME"

John Blair, 44, 917 Sandusky street, North Side, was arrested early today by City Detectives Edward McEntee and Clarence Rayder and charged with fraudulently disposing of radios, which he had obtained by buying them on the installment plan and making only the first payment.

POTATO THEATER FEE GETS POOR 20 BUSHELS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 23.—A novel fee of one potato, charged by C. A. Wagner for admittance to his two theaters here, resulted in collection of 20 bushels, which were donated to the Salvation Army for distribution in Christmas baskets.

'White Christmas' Promised for Pittsburgh

Snow flurries, which began today and may continue tonight and tomorrow, will mean a "white Christmas" for Pittsburgh, W. S. Brotzman said today.

Following the snow the weather will clear, he said. Fair skies are likely by Sunday, with moderate winter temperatures prevailing. Today skies were cloudy westward to the plains states, but beyond the weather was fair.

SEIZE WHISKY IN AUTO TOP

By Universal Service.

LAREDO, Tex., Dec. 23.—Twenty cases of whisky, valued at thousands of dollars, was seized by Customs officials from the top of an automobile where a special cavity had been made to hold them as well as from behind the seats, the stuffing of which had been removed to make room for the bottles. The 480 bottles of whisky, made at Juarez, Chihuahua, were brought to Nuevo Laredo and thence here. The owner of the car was not found.

NO CHRISTMAS PARDONS FOR CONVICTS IN STATE

By International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 23.—There will be no Christmas pardons this year, F. H. Hoy, secretary of the State Board of Pardons said today. Action of the board on hearings held Wednesday will not be announced until next week.

Under the law the board meets the third Wednesday in each month. Fifty-nine convicts whose cases were before the board had hoped that they would be free to spend Christmas with their families. The board had planned to announce the list of pardons granted by Christmas, but it is necessary to make written reports and receive the sanction of the Governor on each pardon, which cannot be done in time for Christmas pardons.

Among those awaiting pardons are John A. Bell and Joseph Valotta, of Pittsburgh.

Lily Makes Up Her Mind To Marry Drummond, But Feels Depressed

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lexington is the spoiled and only daughter of the Cyrus Lexingtons, who have always lived far beyond their means. She realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to Staley Drummond, a rich bachelor older than herself.

Downtown to meet her chum, Sue Cain, she is attracted by Pat France, a taxi driver. She asks him to drive her home. On the way she learns that he is cab-driving to raise money to finance a new kind of piston ring he has invented. Pat tells her that he is selling the cab to raise money for the piston ring, and she miserably wonders how she'll see him after that. Mrs. Lexington plans a big dinner party to announce the engagement, and on the night of it Staley comes to the house early to see Lily alone. He tells her the age-difference between them doesn't matter and tenderly kisses her. Lily realizes that she hates his love-making.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WELL, my boy," he said, heartily, "this is a great day for us—when we welcome you into the family."

Then he laid his other hand on the round, white arm of his daughter and looked at her with pride and love in his eyes. "Lily's mother and I feel that she's in good hands when she goes to you," he added, and Lily could see that he meant it.

Then the doorbell rang and Sue Cain came with Jack Eastman. The evening had begun.

As Lily led Sue upstairs to her room, she felt baffled and down-hearted. It was too late now to do anything. . . . Down in the hall Jack Eastman was slapping Staley on the back and saying something that Lily could not hear, but she knew that he was congratulating Staley already.

The trap had sprung. She was in it now—caught.

"Well, I breathe a sigh of relief because you've made up your mind that you want Staley after all," Sue said when she and Lily were together in the big luxurious guestroom upstairs. She took a tiny gold comb from her gold-brocaded evening bag and began to work with her hair before the glass as she talked.

"Far be it from me to advise you to marry a man you don't care about," she went on, nodding at Lily in the glass, "but you've been going around with Staley for such a long time that you must be crazy about him or you couldn't have stood him for so long."

She looked up at Lily, turning her dark little face, with its vivid red lips and eyes that were like two spots of black velvet in its artificial whiteness. But Lily kept perfectly still. . . . No use to say anything now, she kept thinking. The time to say that she wasn't "crazy" about Staley had gone by.

"Besides, there's lots more to marriage than just love!" Sue spoke again. "There's companionship—and Staley is your kind of person. He talks your language, and knows your kind of people. You'll always be great pals. And then there's money—Lily, you'd be a failure, a joke, and a total loss married to a poor man. To a man like—"

"Oh, let's not talk about it!" Lily broke in quickly. It seemed to her that she couldn't bear to have Sue talk about Pat France that night, or ever again. The only thing to do was to forget him—not to speak of him—not to think of him.

But when Sue wanted to talk about anything, she talked about it. It was as impossible to stop her as it is impossible to stop the rain from falling and the morning from coming.

"That certainly was a slick little furn-down you had the other day from that taxi driver," she said, musingly, and then she gave her sharp wicked, little giggle. "It tickled me to see you get it—after the way most men fall dead at your feet, old kid!"

Still giggling, she started down the stairs, and Lily went down after her, feeling about as cheerful as Daniel did when he descended into the den of lions.

That night Mrs. Lexington had all the things for her dinner party that her husband had told her they could not afford.

She had the new butler to serve the dinner.

She had the banquet cloth of filet lace and Italian cut-work that she had paid $500 for.

She had the silver-trimmed cock-tail glasses, and tiny silver-trimmed liquor glasses that she had been weeping and pleading for for over two weeks.

She had a centerpiece of white orchids and red orchids for the middle of the table, and cloisonne enamel ash trays for favors.

"It was a marvelous dinner party," she declared with great satisfaction when the last guest was gone. She sat down before the little fire in the library and kicked off the silver-cloth slippers that had been torturing her for hours, and began to pull some of the hairpins from her hair. "But thank goodness it's over—although I suppose life in this house will be fairly exciting from now until the wedding day."

Her husband looked at her thoughtfully. "What do you suppose tonight's shindig set us back, Ellie?" he asked, lifting his chin from the stiff collar that was scraping it.

Mrs. Lexington sighed and frowned. "Cy, must we always talk about money?" she asked in a very tired voice. "Tonight was lovely—We did our best by our little girl, and gave her a beautiful party. Everyone had such a good time—"

"I didn't have a good time," said her husband, scowling. "We gave Lily a fine dinner all right, but we could have done it just as well with the old glasses and the table-cloth we've been using for parties right along, couldn't we? Gadzooks, every time the new butler came around with a plate I felt as if he was a bill collector. What are we paying that bird, anyway?"

"We're going to keep him only until the wedding, Cy," said Mrs. Lexington, not answering his question, "so please don't fuss. You have only one daughter, you know."

That had always been her chorus when she wanted things for Lily or the house that had to be beautiful and luxurious because it was Lily's home. "We're doing it for Lily, Cy." And so he had always done what she wanted, no matter how hard he had to struggle to keep his head above the flood of debts.

Lily went to sleep that night to the sound of bickering in the library below her room—her father's low, protesting voice, and her mother's quick angry tones.

"Perhaps Sue's right — and money is a big part of married life and happiness," she thought, drowsily, her red-gold head pillowed on her arms. "Mother and Dad would have been a lot happier if they'd had more money—that's certain."

And so she went on arguing with herself that maybe she was doing the right thing and the smart thing by marrying Staley Drummond. Well, she would be a good wife to him, at any rate—and she would have everything. Everything!

The next day was the second-last day of the month.

"Tomorrow will be the last day Pat drives his cab," thought Lily, sitting at the lunch table with her mother, an hour after she opened her eyes.

On the table before her were the remnants of last night's feast. The salmon mayonnaise looked sad and sloppy, with the wilted lettuce around it. The rolls that had hardened over night. The warmed-over potatoes with the cheese hardened around the edge of the baking dish.

It was a most unappetizing meal. But it had to be eaten, for Mrs. Lexington economized by never wasting a crumb—and if one meal was feast, the next one was practically famine.

But Mrs. Lexington ate her dried-up roll as if it were food for the gods. Beside her on the table was the morning paper, and on its "society" page was a large picture of Lily. She read the paragraph beneath it aloud with great gusto:

"'Miss Lily Lexington, whose engagement to Mr. Staley Drummond was announced last evening at a dinner given by Miss Lexington's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Merriman Lexington of Montpelier road.'"

"I wonder if Pat will see it," thought Lily, looking at the picture over her mother's shoulder.

Suddenly longing to see him once more swept over her—after tomorrow she would have no more chances to run downtown and climb into his cab and talk to him. . . . Tomorrow would be the last day he would have his cab. And, besides, it hurt no one if she simply spent a half hour with him, did it?

"But what if he refuses to let me into the cab the way he did the day I was with Sue," she said to herself, as she dressed in a new pale-gray suit and robin's egg blue hat, and pinned some robin's egg blue flowers on her shoulder. "Well, I'll have to take that chance—that's all." She had to see him!

By a splendid stroke of luck his cab stood in Albermarle street, Lily's heart seemed to leap and bound when she saw it, and then to lie very still in her breast.

As she neared it she saw that Pat was talking to a small, plain girl in dark blue, who stood beside the cab, smiling up at him.

"So that is how things are! This is why he treats me like a criminal, a vamp, and a door-mat!" said Lily to herself. "He has a girl of his own!" And she felt a sudden scorching jealousy of the plain, small girl.

She walked straight up to the cab and laid her white-gloved hand on the door. "Are you busy, or could you take me for a passenger?" she asked, and from the corner of her eye she saw the small, plain girl in dark blue give Pat a small smile and then turn away into the crowd.

She got into the cab.

Tucked behind the jump seat was a folded newspaper, and Lily saw that part of it had been cut out. . . . It was part of the society page of the morning paper—the part that had had her photograph on it!

CHAPTER VIII.

NOBODY ever had taught Lily Lexington good manners.

She knew which fork and spoon to use at a dinner party, she knew how to enter a room, and the proper way to pick up a dropped handkerchief from the floor. She had been trained to do such things properly all her life, true enough.

But so far as real manners went, she had none.

She never stopped to think whether she was hurting people's feelings or not, before she did and said unkind things to them. She was cruel the way a charming child is cruel—thoughtlessly.

So now it did not occur to her that she was doing a rude and cruel thing when she asked Pat France why he had cut her picture out of the paper. He did not answer at first, so she prodded him again.

"What did you want it for?" she asked him, sitting on the jump seat, where she usually sat in his cab, and leaning toward him.

She saw his face redden and his jaw harden. He did not answer.

"Jiminy, from the way you treat me I should think my picture would be about the last thing in the world you'd want," Lily said, her big, gray-green eyes twinkling.

Pat France made a sound in his throat that was neither a laugh nor a grunt. "Yeah, and from what I have just read about you in the paper I should think my picture would be about the last thing in the world you'd want!" he came right back at her.

Lily Makes Up Her Mind To Marry Drummond, But Feels Depressed

"You're going to be married pretty soon, aren't you?"

He turned quickly and looked at her, and she nodded. "In June," she said, softly, and tried to smile.

"Who's the man—the fellow who tried to give me that money the other night?"

Lily said it was.

"I never take money that I don't earn," he said gruffly, without turning his head. "I've never taken a tip in my life."

"Why not?"

Pat shrugged his broad shoulders under their khaki. "Why?" he asked. "You see, I own this cab. The company I work for is managed by my best friend, Roy Jetterson, and all the men in it own their cabs and part of the stock. It's a little company, but we're mighty proud of it. Roy and I would have bought out the rest of the fellows in it if we hadn't wanted the money for this piston ring of mine."

Lily knew nothing about business. But she was sharp about money and she couldn't see why Pat wouldn't take a tip. "Suppose you do own the cab—what difference does that make?" she wanted to know. "Everybody expects to give taxi drivers tips, and they're idiots if they don't take them."

He simply raised his straight, thick brows at this, and smiled.

"Who was that girl you were talking to?" Lily demanded next.

"A friend of mine."

"What's her name?" It never occurred to her that she was being extraordinary impertinent. She simply wanted to know all about the plain little girl in blue, and so she asked about her. Why not?

"What difference can it make what her name is?" asked Pat. "What possible difference can it make to you?"

Lily thought this over. . . . Well what difference did it make what the girl's name was? Her name did not matter, but something else did matter—to Lily, at least.

"Is she your—your girl?" she asked.

There was a long silence after this, while the car jogged along Eucalyptus avenue and turned into Montpelier road.

"You haven't answered me," Lily reminded her driver after three or four minutes.

"No, and I'm not going to," he told her deliberately, in a cool, flat voice.

"You think it's none of my business, I suppose?" Lily asked, watching the angry blue of his eyes in the mirror on the windshield.

"Exactly."

They drove on.

"What are you going to do after you sell your cab?" she asked, presently. "Stop working and try to get your piston ring on the market?"

Pat shook his head. "I'll keep on working at something. I can't stop altogether," he said. "I've got to sell the cab to raise some money, and I'll have to keep on making more money until I put the piston ring over. Roy Jetterson's in on it, too, but he has a family and can't throw his money around any more than I can."

Lily nodded. "Isn't this the strangest thing? Here I sit, listening to you talk about Roy Jetterson as if I knew him—listening to you talk about your piston ring as if it really made some difference to me in life. But after tomorrow I'll never see you again, probably, and you'll never see me. We don't really matter the least bit to each other—only I feel as if I knew you awfully well. Odd, isn't it?"

"Yeah," said Pat with great cheerfulness, and then added briskly: "You won't see me tomorrow, though, because I'm turning the cab in tonight."

Lily's heart sank as if a stone were tied to it. "I'll be home in 10 minutes," she thought. "And that will be goodby. He was a cab driver, making $35 a week if he were lucky, and she was Lily Lexington, who paid that much for a hat and thought nothing of it.

"And anyway, why should I bother about a man who refuses to answer questions when I ask him questions?" she went on debating with herself, "who's been rude to me right along—accusing me of stealing the card out of his car—refusing to drive me home the day I was with Sue Cain. Why should I worry about him?"

Then she looked down at the newspaper that had had her picture torn from it. She wondered if he had it in his pocket now.

"Won't you tell me why you wanted my picture?" she asked him again, and wished the words back in her throat the minute she had said them.

He answered her slowly and thoughtfully, as if he were trying to figure out just why he wanted it himself. "Why, I suppose because you're the prettiest girl I ever saw. You don't mind if I have it, do you?"

"Anyone can tear my picture out of a paper, I suppose. I can't stop you from doing it—"

Pat France interrupted her. "But you'd rather I didn't have it, wouldn't you?"

Lily never knew why she answered "Yes." Secretly she was vastly pleased because he had taken her picture. Even if she never saw him again, she was glad that he had thought enough of her to keep it—moved, perhaps, by the same impulse that had made her take his identification card out of the cab the first day she rode in it.

Then she saw that he was taking a piece of folded paper from the inside pocket of his dust-colored coat. He handed it to her.

It was the newspaper picture of her. "All right, here it is," he said, and she took it, tore it into a dozen pieces, and threw the pieces to the four winds of the spring day. They fluttered down upon the road like crushed white butterflies and lay there in the mud.

Madge and Lillian Discuss Frankly Mary Harrison's Situation

DESPITE the fact that Lillian and I had not seen each other for several weeks, we talked very little in the hour following our return from the mountain inn where we had dined with Philip Veritzen. I was more fatigued than I had thought by my long day, which had begun at dawn in the farmhouse 100 miles away, and I was glad indeed to luxuriate in a hot scented bath, and slip into bed afterward. Indeed it was not until the next night, after a day of shopping for me and work for Lillian that we settled down to what she invariably dubs "a powwow."

"Let's take things seriatim," she proposed when in negligee and slippers we sat with lights turned low and the door to her balcony open, that we might get what cool air the heated city permitted. "In the first place, I want to get the low down about Mary. Tell me again about that proposal of hers to tell Phil Veritzen all about her escapade."

"It's a short and simple story," I said. "She has been going through agonies of remorse and repentance ever since she has been well enough to think about anything. At first she wanted to confess to everybody, her grandmother, the Braithwaites, everybody who held a good opinion of her."

"She's just young and temperamental enough for that," she commented. "Of course you steered her away from it."

I nodded. "I had quite a time to make her see how futile such a proceeding would be—how criminal even, in the case of her grandmother. But she was adamant on the subject of telling Mr. Veritzen that she had been the masked dancer. On that point, of course, I did not oppose her after I had told her that he never would know unless she did tell him."

"I'm not so sure of that after his spiel today," she said, thoughtfully. "Are you?"

"No, I'm not," I returned. "And yet, there at the last when he was discussing the masked dancer's disappearance, I didn't see anything in his words or manner which would indicate that he suspected Mary of being that girl."

"Oh, yes, he was apparently the soul of frankness," Lillian said, "but I've known Phil Veritzen for many Winters and Summers, and while he has loads of good qualities, he also has a few which are not so admirable, and one of them gives him at times a distinct resemblance to a cat with a mouse between his paws. There's a touch of the feline in Philip Veritzen, and I thought I saw a glimpse of it today in his eyes when he was talking about Mary. I hope I'm mistaken."

Lillian nodded angrily.

I silently but tensely echoed her hope, and after a few seconds Lillian spoke again.

"I'm going to lay all my cards on the table, Madge. There mustn't be anything but frankness between us. I could see today that you saw my reasons for not coming to you with Marion this summer as I always have done—and resented them."

"Yes, I did," I returned, resolved to match her plain speaking with my own. "I know, of course, that it's because of Mary, you're afraid to have Marion too closely associated with her—and—I think you're doing both girls an injury."

She threw up her head and looked at me steadily. I saw that I had startled her.

"How?" The interrogation held not only surprise but a faint tinge of alarm, such as might be felt by the owner of a dike who had thought it impregnable and then suddenly discovered a crack in it.

"Because," I said slowly, "Mary is nothing but a child terribly remorseful for the folly which after all has hurt only her prospects, not her character. I am sure association with her would not hurt Marion at all. And—forgive me, Lillian—but aren't you trying to keep that adorable daughter of yours too tightly wrapped in cotton-wool?"

FOR THE LOVELORN

Motionless

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been a reader of your column for over five years and find it very interesting. I thought I would never have to write here, for I have a good mother who tells me everything, but still I want your advice on this one question. I am a girl of 17 and I like a young man who is 19 years older than myself. He has shown me better times than any of my other friends, but that is not the reason I like him, but I like him because he acts decently, and sensibly while he is around me. Miss Gale, he tells me he likes me better than any girl he has met. He has one fault and that is drinking, but he says he would stop if he could get me. Now, Miss Gale, my mother and dad won't let me go with him. I know their reasons and I have done all the talking to them that's possible and they still object to my going with him. You will say I am too young and that I can forget him, but I don't think I can even if I tried to. Please tell me what move to make.

"MOTIONLESS."

If this young man liked you as well as he tells you he does he would give up his drinking when he knows how you feel about it. He certainly wouldn't stop after you married him if he doesn't care for you enough to do it now. I quite agree with your parents in objecting to him, my dear.

Disappointed

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young man of 20. I do not neck, drink or smoke, and have no other bad habits. I have been going with different girls for over two years and have as yet not met my ideal. All seem to be the same—in search of a good time, indulging freely in necking, cigarets and liquor. Miss Gale, I am afraid my hopes of finding such a girl as I desire will not be realized. Do you really think there are any such girls to be found—those who do not neck, smoke or drink? I have come to the conclusion that there are none.

DISAPPOINTED.

Of course there are. Disappointed, and they say they cannot find young men who do not want to do these things. You are sure to meet your ideal some day, so don't be discouraged.

DEATH OF MINE STRIKER'S WIFE AROUSES REDS

The death of Mrs. Joseph Lubresky, striking miner's wife, who succumbed to pneumonia in the refugee camp at Acmetonia yesterday, after her forced removal from her home, led to hot denunciation of the mine owners at a mass meeting held by the Pennsylvania-Ohio-Colorado Miners' Relief Committee at the International Socialist Lyceum, 805 James street, North Side, last night. President Coolidge, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, the Presbyterian churches of Washington county, the coal and iron police, and an unnamed school teacher in North Bessemer were among other targets for the speakers' wrath.

The Pennsylvania - Ohio-Colorado Miners' Relief Committee is a "Bolshevik" organization, according to Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and he has scant use for it.

WOMEN SPEAK

A. S. Embree, an organizer for the International Workers of the World in Colorado, and two young women members of the same organization were speakers at the meeting. They said they were on their way to New York to accuse John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of responsibility for the death of six striking miners who were killed in a battle with the police at Columbine, Col., on November 21.

One of the girls, Milka Sablich—"Flaming Milka," they call her, because of her fiery nature, no less than on account of her red dress—has just been released from jail, where, as she proudly asserted, she served four weeks and six days for picketing. She is only 19 and was employed as a butter wrapper in Trinidad, Col., until the miners' strike influenced her to assume her role as picketer.

The other woman was Mrs. Blanche Unwin, wife of a striker.

The chairman of the meeting was Powers Hapgood. He is a slim man, 27, a Harvard graduate of the class of 1921, and a nephew of Norman Hapgood, one time editor of Collier's and Harper's weeklies. Powers Hapgood, a striking coal miner, said he would rather not have it known that he is a Harvard man, as the fact would cause him to be regarded with suspicion by his fellow-workers and fellow-radicals. He is under bond for trial in Boston on a charge of inciting to riot in connection with a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration.

In opening the meeting Hapgood asserted that if the miners lose this strike the entire labor movement in America will be attacked by the employers.

DRUG PEDDLERS GET 6 MONTHS

James Ross of Baltimore, Md., and Celeste Jones, of Uniontown, Negroes, were sentenced by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve six months in jail each, when they pleaded guilty to selling and possessing contraband drugs. Joseph Andy, 18, pleaded guilty to violating the narcotic act and was sentenced to the National Training School for Boys at Washington, D. C. He was described as having been a "lookout" for Roxie Spade of Epiphany street, a drug peddler, who is undergoing a year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary.

Reginald Denny, in Annual War With Universal, Says If There's No Peace He'll Go to England

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.

REGINALD DENNY is having his annual battle with Universal. Only this year he has eliminated himself by arguing for more money for production expenses. Heretofore, his grievance has been aimed at his own pay check. This year he concentrates on his films. Universal, thinking to soothe their star's ruffled feelings, stated that there was nothing to the report that Mr. Denny had walked out.

Mr. Denny was not so reticent himself. He talked freely and determinedly, stating that if his ideas were not met he would leave Universal and sail for England.

His grievance is against the stories chosen and the amount of money spent in production.

"My pictures made a year ago cost more and were better," he said. "The trouble is with the class of stories chosen. In the long run it is I who will incur the exhibitor's wrath and find my popularity gone—not the film company who will suffer."

"Be Yourself," he said, was not to his liking, although he conceded one point—that much had been done to change the story and that he would probably go to work on Tuesday. "But unless some change is made, I shall not make any more pictures for Universal," said Mr. Denny with finality.

A discreet silence was maintained at Universal. The only reply to questions being, "Mr. Denny returns to work Tuesday."

Mary Astor wasn't one bit peeved when First National announced that she had been loaned to Fox for the feminine lead in "Dressed to Kill." Why should she care—when her fiancee, Kenneth Hawks, is working on the same lot. Only Mary, alas and alas, is not being directed by her future husband. Irving Cummings is directing her and Edmund Lowe is the best man in the case. Perhaps I should speak stronger about Mr. Lowe's part. He is the featured male lead and you know how sensitive some of these players are if you don't give them all the honors coming to them. "Dressed to Kill" is an underworld story based on an original by Mr. Cummings and William Counselman. Others in the cast are R. O. Pennell, Robert Perry, Mike Donlin, Milly Goulden, Tom Dugan, Joe Brown, John Kelly, Robert O'Connor and Ed Brady. Plenty of male support for little Miss Astor.

Out at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer work is going on quietly but surely. Ramon Navarro's picture, "Chinabound," is all set. Yesterday Frank Currier was named to play his father, an important role. Gwen Lee was chosen as Diane in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," and other appointments were made. The holidays may come and go but the studios let nothing interfere with schedule. They are not unlike newspapers in that respect.

"Scooter" Lowry wins the child's role in "Chinatown Charlie," Johnny Hines' picture. A terrible blow for the mothers who have hoped against hope that their young offspring could get the chance offered by Mr. Hines. The average child is far better off in school than he is on the screen. Or if he is too young to go to school, he should be allowed to play outdoors and get some fresh air. I can never be whole-heartedly in favor of children being thrust into the movies.

"Their Hour" (not by Elinor Glyn) is to be filmed the day after Christmas, with Al Raboch handling the megaphone for Tiffany-Stahl. Mr. Raboch asked to be permitted to wait until the day after Christmas because he is host at a Christmas party to 150 children. Most of the youngsters are students in the dancing school of his fiancee, Curtyne Englar. Entertaining that many children is enough to make anyone need a rest.

Location companies will be mighty scarce Christmas Day. All the companies are heading in for Hollywood to spend the festive day around the home fireside. Christmas is one day when all the stars gather their families together and celebrate at home. The Montemarte had a larger attendance than usual at luncheon and most of the guests came in laden with packages. Mrs. Tom Mix, in a bright red dress, left early to go shopping with Tom. Mrs. Ralph Ince lingered only long enough to finish her luncheon. Mrs. Al Parker, Mrs. Ona Brown and Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle were three busy matrons, who wielded a pencil all through luncheon on what looked like a Christmas list. Everyone has the fever.

Much, much more in anger than in sorrow, H. H. Van Loan writes a naughty letter from New York reproving me for crediting Arthur Hoerle with the authorship of "You Can't Beat the Law." Says Mr. Van Loan in his very curt and demanding letter: "I might inform you I worked very hard on that story. If Mr. Hoerle wrote it, neither Ray Johnstone, president of Rayart Pictures Corporation, nor myself are aware of it."

U. S. COURT ENDS SESSION; TRIES 600 CASES

Jail and penitentiary terms aggregating 12 years, 10 months and 25 days, and fines aggregating $37,311, were imposed during the eight-week session of the United States District Court that ended yesterday. It was one of the most active sessions in the history of the court, in which the criminal dockets were cleared of approximately 600 cases.

The session was given over chiefly to minor criminal proceedings to relieve the congestion in the court. Several big cases were tried, the most prominent being the prosecution and conviction of a large number of defendants in the McKeesport whisky conspiracy case.

The record compiled in the office of United States District Attorney John D. Meyer recorded 467 defendants entering pleas of guilty, most of whom were violators of the national prohibition law. There were 84 jury trials in criminal cases, resulting in 39 convictions, eight acquittals and a number of other cases nolle prossed. Seventeen verdicts of not guilty were returned on direction of the court.

Three of the eight weeks of court were given over entirely to civil litigation.

Monty Gets Kick From Risking His Neck

Monte Banke gets a kick from risking his neck. Originally a stunt man, he misses that wild game, and he will allow no one to double for him.

Art Goebel taught him to fly. After that, he couldn't rest until he did an aviation comedy. "Flying Luck" is the result, and Monty had even more luck in it than appears on the screen—which is considerable. The camera was lashed to a board in the fuselage of his plane and was operated by a motor instead of a crank switch. He went up alone, and did every kind of wild stunt in the plane. He rose to an altitude of 4,000 feet, and below him he had passed three other airplanes. Suddenly, happening to look up, he was amazed to see the three planes were way above him, and below, the earth and principally a gas tank, were rushing up to meet him. While he was pulling his comedy stuff, the stick had slipped and he had been steadily falling. A huge crowd shrieked with horror. If he—well, Monty did the best he could. The plane missed the gas tank by feet, some say inches, and he side slipped, by another miracle, to safety. His manager passed out entirely, but as Monty explains it:

"As long as I have no wife, I should worry! And, anyway, if I live so I don't hurt anyone, I feel nothing will hurt me."

It's a fine sentiment. But the question is, how long will it work?

Sills Is To Film Jack London Story

Everything is in readiness for the start of Milton Sills' new picture, Burning Daylight," and the costume, property and other departments have been working at high speed to provide the habiliments and objects to be used in this Jack London story of Alaska and the days of the Klondike gold rush.

"It is a rattling good yarn," comments Milton Sills, "and I'm anxious to get into it. London certainly knew what he was writing about and this story is one of his very best."

Doris Kenyon has the feminine lead and Charles Brabin will direct. Louis Stevens adapted the novel.

SPECIAL WEEKLY FEATURE ANNOUNCED FOR GAYETY

Manager Charles Bragg of the Gayety Theater announces his plan to put on special added attractions weekly, beginning Christmas week with the Sunday midnight show. "Niada," a classical dancer, is to display her artistry at each performance, and he expects her act will prove of special interest to patrons, as it is devoid of anything that might prove objectionable to the many women who attend the Gayety.

ASK $20,000,000 FOR GULF-TO-LAKE WATERWAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The Illinois committee of the Mississippi Valley Association urged Federal appropriation of $20,000,000 for inland waterways, in 1928, to be expended in a period of four years to complete the Gulf-to-the-Lakes waterway. The program calls for channel improvements that would provide 9,000 miles of inland waterway. The Illinois committee is co-operating with the Mississippi Valley Association in sponsoring flood control.

Two Plays, Novels Acquired For Screen

Richard A. Rowland, vice president, general and production manager of First National Pictures, has announced the purchase of new story material. World screen rights have been acquired in two new plays and in two novels.

One of the plays purchased for the screen is American in authorship and setting, the other European. The American play is Harry Conners' "Applesauce," which had a Broadway run this season. The other is "Sarga Lilion," which, translated, is "The Yellow Lily," by Lajos Biro, Hungarian playwright, several of whose plays have been seen in this country.

The two novels which First National will translate to the screen are: "The Divine Lady," by E. Barrington, and "The Girl in a Glass Cage," by George Kibbe Turner.

Dooley Is Making Fifteenth Comedy

Against a sinister background of shanghaied cutthroats and a ferocious forecastle, Billy Dooley, the "misfit sailor," of Paramount-Christie short features, is hard at work under the direction of William Watson. "Water Bugs" is the title.

Billy's characterization is new. Although a sailor in Uncle Sam's navy, the "goofy gob" is shanghaied on his shore leave, onto a regular old-time schooner, where brawn is commoner than brains. Vera Steadman also has a different role, that of the captain's sea-going daughter. Billy Engle, now in his first year of a long term contract at Christies, has been given the part of the captain, his most important role to date, and big Bill Blaisdell is the rough and ready first mate, who induces Billy by force to become a real sea-sprayed salt before the mast.

"Water Bugs" is an entirely new story for Dooley, having a dramatic background for the most hilarious comedy. Others of his productions this year have also been unusual, notably "A Moony Mariner," in which he submits to being shot up to the "moon" in a rocket invented by his sweetheart's papa.

William Watson, directing "Water Bugs," is on his fifteenth picture with Billy Dooley, and "Water Bugs" is Billy's fifteenth, as Watson introduced him to the camera when Al Christie took him from vaudeville. In this two years and a half Dooley has climbed to a high position among comedy stars.

ADMITS KILLING AS HE DIES ON SCAFFOLD

VICKSBURG, Miss., Dec. 23.—Richard Bridges screamed out that he had killed patrolman Robert Forbish here April 3, as the black cap was placed over his head and he was dropped to death. Prior to the placing of the cap he said he never killed the policeman.

3RD PITTSBURGH MAN WANTS TO KILL VELMA

Another Pittsburgh man has announced his desire to execute Velma West, confessed slayer of her husband in their Painesville, O., home, it was revealed yesterday when a letter was received by Vic Donahey, governor of Ohio. The latest applicant for the job is L. W. Lee of 337 First avenue. Last week J. B. Kremer of Mt. Oliver expressed his desire to be executor.

Lee's address is that of a downtown rooming house. He claims he has a large home on the North Side, but lives in the rooming house to study people. He says he is a landscape gardener and also works as a house-to-house canvasser. He said he believes the murder was committed for the love of thrills, which is a sin of the highest degree and must be punished.

ONCE A YEAR WE FIND THERE IS A SANTA CLAUS

CAN'T FOOL YOUNGSTERS

"Hello Santa!" greeted this pert young lady who prefers whiskers. Little Elizabeth Schmertz, of Squirrel Hill, can't be fooled. She didn't like the beardless Santa who wanted to shake hands with her last week, so when mother heard beards would be in style once again, she brought Elizabeth to town to tell the jolly fellow what she wanted for Christmas.

EFFIE DOLGOS

Somebody's going to get something real nice for Christmas. Miss Effie Dolgos, of Neville Island, has just been around the town buying a few little gifts for her friends.

EDITH MILTON

The holly and Christmas green venders are doing a rushing business. Mistletoe is quite popular with the fair sex and here are a few young women buying it. Edith Milton tried to convince her friends to buy at least one little sprig.

LIONS AND KIWANIANS -:- GIVE POOR CHILDREN -:- CHRISTMAS DINNERS

LIONS' SANTA CLAUS

Lions' Club members showed their good humor when they entertained 80 children from the Manchester blast devastated district at dinner, and added gifts of toys and candy.

A CHRISTMAS STORY

Children from the homes of the poor, assembled by the Volunteers of America, entertained by the Kiwanis Club at a Ft. Pitt Hotel luncheon.

WATCHING FOR SANTA

Salvation Army boys and girls at the Kiwanis Club luncheon have just been told to look out for the Christmas saint.

KIWANIS ENTERTAINERS

Theatrical folk on invitation of Eugene Connelley gave a jolly entertainment to nearly 100 little guests of the Kiwanis Club at their annual holiday feast and dedicated the Kiwanian Christmas tree.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Even With Long List of Debuts Not All Pittsburgh Buds Have Blossomed Forth

ALTHOUGH parents of the social set have been presenting their young daughters to society ever since the very first day of November, all the season's buds have not yet made their formal bows. The Christmas season seems to be much favored by the mothers of debbies, particularly by those matrons whose daughters are going to college.

Among this group is Lucy Ward, a Smith girl, whose mother, Mrs. T. Coleman Ward, is presenting her at a tea dance this afternoon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club annex. Receiving with Mrs. Ward and the debbie is their cousin, Zara Moxham, of Great Neck, L. I., who is their house guest.

Mrs. Ward is wearing blue chiffon and lace and carrying Ward roses. The debutante is in rose beige lace over satin of the same shade and is carrying lavender orchids. With her green chiffon frock Zara Moxham is carrying delicate green orchids.

In the ballroom Christmas decorations are used. Southern smilax, flaming poinsettias and small fir trees impart the proper Yuletide atmosphere.

The guests include the friends of both the mother and the daughter.

Lucy has as her aides a group of sister buds, Elizabeth Nicholson, Nancy Hamilton, Juliet Hillman, Anne Louise Marshall, Mary Mellon McClung, Anne King Scott, Frances Fitzgerald, Mary Louise Johnson, Janet McKinney, Florence Wainwright and Florence Carroll.

Mary Louise Johnson, the charming daughter of Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, of Forbes street, is certainly being much entertained. Mary was presented, you recall, at a tea her mother gave in the family home last month.

Last evening Mrs. Johnson gave a large ball in her home for her daughter. And more than three hundred guests were there.

So that there might be plenty of room for dancing a large marquee, opening from the book room of the home, served as the ballroom. The marquee was interestingly decorated. The walls were finished in gold and the ceiling and panels in silvery gray, and the windows overlooking the picturesque garden were draped in green and gold brocade. At one end of the marquee was a large open fireplace, piled high with flaming logs. Rose begonias almost concealed the shelf over the fireplace. Of course there had to be a reminder of the Yuletide season, so tinsel Christmas trees in black velvet holders were placed at intervals down both sides of the ballroom, and at each end of the room the walls were decorated with large silver wreaths, from which hung sprays of silver foliage. Rose pink begonias were clustered in the terrace rail and in the window leading to the house.

Mrs. Johnson and the debbie received in the book room, Mary Louise wore white velvet with rhinestone embroidery and carried a Colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses, lilies of the valley, butterfly roses, violets and heather. A gown of black lace over white satin was worn by Mrs. Johnson, who had a corsage of orchids.

A buffet supper was served in the high-ceilinged dining room of the home, with the table holding Pernet roses in the center and at each end tinsel Christmas trees.

There were a number of out-of-town guests at the ball. Among them were Marguerite Gillison, Baisley Elevash, Daniel Shanley and William Wilson, all of New York. They are guests in the Johnson home.

Though members of the social set gladly throw open their homes to entertain their friends throughout the year, there is one day that they confine entirely to their own inner circle, and that day is Christmas. Many Pittsburgh families will be increased greatly in numbers by boys and girls home from school, by married sons and daughters, by uncles and aunts and cousins.

The Hicks family will be entertained at a family dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wiman Hicks of Fifth avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Leyis W. Hicks, Jr., will be there as well as the Harry B. Cooks, parents of Mrs. Hicks, Jr., and Franklin Cook, her brother. The Cooks, who are from Atlantic City, will be here throughout the holiday season, I hear.

The coming of the Princeton Tri-angle Club boys today has created quite a stir in the social world. During their brief stay here, the Princetonians are to be much entertained. There will be many dinners, too, before the play this evening.

The John Ballards of Murdoch street, will entertain at a small dinner tonight in the University Club in honor of Mrs. Ballard's brother, John M. Gaston, Jr., and of Orris Clinger, of Tillotte. Wesley Mappietoft, of Newark, N. J., a member of the cast; Nancy Bowman, of Oakmont; Jane Irwin of Bellevue; Winifred Johnston, of New Castle; Eleanor Baton, of this city, and Edward Peters, of Oil City, will be among the guests. Mr. Gaston is a senior at Princeton.

Miss Diskin and Miss Nelms are aides for the intercollegiate ball to be held Monday night in the William Penn Hotel.

held for their daughter, Mary Thaw Dilworth, who is home from the Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn., for the holidays. There were about 100 guests, and they were given Christmas favors. One prize figure was danced.

Harriet Webb Fickes was guest of honor yesterday at a tea dance which her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stanton Fickes of Woodland road, gave in their home. There were, of course, Christmas decorations, poinsettias, silver holly and smilax, being used throughout the rooms. Tea was served in the billiard room to about 150 guests. Three classmates of Harriet at the Westover School, Mary Palmer and Sally Walker of Erie, and Isabel Healy of Pottstown were present.

A date for another dance for the younger school set has been set. The J. W. Olivers of Sewickley Heights are planning to entertain Wednesday night for their son, William H. Oliver.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rall, of Dormont, entertained at bridge Wednesday night to announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ellamae Rall, to John H. Blythe, son of Mrs. J. W. Blythe, of Dormont. A spring wedding is planned.

A Pirates' cabaret dance is being planned for January 10 in the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association, South Bellefield avenue. Guests will be entertained by pirates and "piratesses," a show being planned for 11 o'clock, and supper will be served all evening. Miss Ida Friedlander is chairman of decorations, with Henry Brooks as technical director, and their committee includes Mrs. Sylvester Steuer, Miss Celia Selker, Hyman Steinberg, Louis Michael, Miss Sylvia Bess, Ralph Bowman, Miss Anne Nathanson, Miss Evelyn Harris, Morris Cohen and Miss Minnie Spiro.

Miss Edith Warner, a junior at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., and her brother, Robert Warner, who is a freshman at the same university, will arrive Monday morning to spend the holidays with their aunt, Mrs. George W. Herriott, of Maple avenue, Edgewood.

Miss Liberty Ewing, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Robert M. Ewing, of Rosemary road, is home from the Western College for Women, Oxford, O., for the holidays. She will return to school January 2.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Poling, who leave this week to make their home in Bloomfield, N. J., were guests of honor Tuesday night at a farewell party given in the home of Mrs. Ruth Whitsell Williams by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Second Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Poling has been co-pastor.

ASPINWALL WOMEN HOLD CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

The community Christmas festival held last night in the high school auditorium by the Woman's Club of Aspinwall was such a success that the members have decided to make it an annual affair. More than 500 persons heard the program, which was opened with a beautiful address of welcome from the club president, Mrs. C. A. Wanamaker, and supplemented by a brief word from F. E. Kebock, school principal. "The community Christmas festival is a step in the right direction and shows a healthy community spirit," said Mr. Kebock. A cantata, "Through the Gates," sung by 60 voices, was the chief feature of the entertainment, which also included numbers by the high school orchestra of 25 under Mr. Kebock's direction. Henry Gill, a former student, sang tenor solos, accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Henry, and community singing closed the evening.

The home economics department of the club will sponsor a second bridge luncheon in the clubhouse next Thursday afternoon under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. D. Chittenden. These affairs, which the department hopes to hold monthly, are to be open to non-members.

Members of the Hazelwood Women's Club exchanged gifts at their meeting yesterday in Odd Fellows' Hall, on the occasion of the customary holiday tea. A short program included assembly caroling, solos by Mrs. Rex Hennen and readings by Mrs. George Massey. There were the usual Yuletide decorations, including a tree.

Gifts for the Toy Mission were brought to their meeting yesterday by members of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg when they met in the home of Miss Charlotte Atkinson, East End avenue. For the program, Mrs. H. E. Carmack and Mrs. George Schmidt, with the assistance of eight little children, presented a Christmas cantata and songs and stories of the Nativity were given. Miss Atkinson was assisted by Mrs. A. R. Brandt and Mrs. Carl Rogers.

The annual Christmas party of the Pittsburgh Alumnae Club of Alpha Chi Omega will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday, December 31, in McCreery's. The affair will take the form of a bridge-luncheon, with the president, Mrs. J. S. Sides, in charge. All the active and alumnae members who are in Pittsburgh are expected to be present and at least 10 different chapters of the fraternity will be represented.

The community service department of the Mount Lebanon Woman's Club will have charge of the January 9 meeting, which will be held in the H. L. Beach home, Washington road. Mrs. Frank Garratt is chairman of the department, which is also to have a benefit bridge party Friday night, January 20, in the Beach home.

* * *

The program for the New Year's party which the New Era Club will hold next Wednesday in the Congress of Clubs will be in charge of Mrs. Marjorie Keil Benton. Mrs. Benton will present David Franklin, baritone, in a recital of Italian, German and English songs, with George Irvine at the piano, and Mr. Franklin also will give a group of piano numbers.

Members of the Wimodausis Club will meet January 9 in the home of Mrs. Thomas McLenahan for an all-day sewing for the Pittsburgh Home for Babies.

The Pittsburgh Chapter of the Goucher Alumnae Association will give a Christmas breakfast December 28 at 10:30 o'clock in the Joseph Horne dining room. The Goucher students, home for the holidays, will be the honor guests. The chairman for the affair is Mrs. Claire Kinter.

* * *

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Pittsburgh Optometric Association is planning a series of affairs, the first to be a card party and dance at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Howard T. Lewis, Brookside Farms, on January 13.

WIFE SEEKS $10,000 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 22.—Suit for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband on October 4, was filed yesterday by Mrs. Christine Christensen, against R. L. Lamberton and Robert Barackman, both of Franklin. The Lamberton and Barackman cars crashed, careening over onto the curb, and striking and killing John C. Christ nsen.

St. Gaudens Called For Army Duty

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Homer St. Gaudens, celebrated Pittsburgh artist, has been called to active duty in the Army to design new methods of camouflage for troops in action.

Mr. St. Gaudens is a major in the reserves. During the World War he was chief camouflage officer for overseas forces. He is to be assigned to the Engineer Corps in Washington.

At Mr. Saint-Gaudens' residence in Bellefield Dwellings it was said that he is spending Christmas with his mother in Windsor, Vt. He will return here Tuesday.

Lack Funds to Bury Evicted Mine Woman

Joseph Lubresky, penniless Acmetonia miner whose wife succumbed to pneumonia following the family's eviction from a Consumers Mining Company house at Harmarville last week, is faced with the problem of a funeral without funds. Friends in the refugee camp have rallied to his aid, but they are as destitute almost as Lubresky. There is hardly enough money for food.

A lavendar crepe hangs on the door outside Lubresky's quarters in the Acmetonia barracks alongside wash tubs and other household equipment for which there is no room inside the cramped living rooms. There is a hush over the section of the camp where Mrs. Lubresky's body lies in its casket in the barren room where she died. Her bed has been squeezed into the only other bedroom in the Lubresky home and the father, two daughters and grandmother are compelled to sleep in the same room. A tiny coal stove, a table and a couple of chairs is all the furniture in the combination kitchen and dining room.

Lubresky is a silent, uncomplaining man, bowed with grief and his inability to provide a suitable funeral for the woman who gave her life for the principles he and his fellow workmen are fighting for in this coal strike. Asked about funeral arrangements, his only comment was, "I have no money and am going into debt to provide a decent funeral for my wife. Burial will not take place until Sunday so as to give my wife's sister a chance to come here from the West. I don't know whether she can come, but we expect to hear from her today.

"Whether she comes or not, though, she has no money to help me out," he finished sadly.

Lubresky, at the time of the eviction, was sick with his wife and now his mother is confined to her bed suffering from grief and shock. Lubresky has two daughters, the oldest being the sole support of the family. She earns $10 a week, out of which she must pay $2.75 for car fare.

Town Fells Poles In War on Company

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Dec. 23.—This town was an armed camp today as the result of trouble between the Pennsylvania Electric Company and borough officials. Fights have occurred when efforts were made to erect poles and string wires on various streets of the town.

The Pennsylvania Electric Company, formerly the Penn Public Service Company, through the courts, acquired the Solar Electric Company, which the borough had tried to purchase.

It is claimed that the electric company's employes, without permission, tried to string wires and erect poles, particularly on Sixth street. Yesterday Street Commissioner Fred D. Sayer's force of borough employes battled with the force of Manager Utts. As Grant Horton began cutting down a pole, Utts, it is said, attacked Horton, and took the ax from him.

This morning borough employes cut down all poles erected by the company and filled holes with earth and removed all the material from Sixth street. Council, backing the borough employes, says the Solar Electric Company has no franchise to erect poles and wires.

"Funny Folks" Sale Ends Tomorrow

The last copies of "All the Funny Folks," story of all the comic characters in the Hearst Sunday newspapers, can be bought today or tomorrow.

And then will end the phenomenal sale, which ran into the thousands, which will provide Christmas gifts for many thousands of children of the Tri-State district.

For the book, with its price of 69 cents placing it within everyone's reach, has captivated the minds of children and adults. Its fanciful story, told in jingles and prose by Jack Lait, its 500 illustrations in color—its sequence and incidents, whereby the favorite, cartoon characters and their antics when their day's work is done are shown—these were some of the factors in the popularity of the book.

Many news dealers still have copies, although just a small number remain. See them today—tomorrow may be too late for Christmas.

FINAL PLEA FOR SEAL SALE

A final appeal to residents of this community to buy Tuberculosis Christmas Seals before the official close of the seal sale on Christmas Day was issued today by Mrs. Ethel H. Gray, 184 West Hutchinson street, Edgewood, chairman of the seal sale in the Edgewood district.

Pointing out that a great deal of work remains to be done in the suppression of tuberculosis in this county despite the fact that the death rate from that disease has been cut practically in half during the past 20 years, the local chairman urged all who have not purchased seals to aid the movement by buying the health stamps.

U.S. RADIO BOARD IS VICTOR

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The government has defeated most of the legal attacks on the Federal Radio Commission's control over broadcasting, the Department of Justice announced yesterday.

Discontinuance of the case brought by the Madison Square Broadcasting Corporation closed the only attempted test of the constitutionality of the radio act, the department said.

All except two of the cases involving appeals from the commission's decisions "have been successfully terminated by the government," the department said.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

CHRISTMAS—THE REJUVENATOR

THE sweetest part of Christmas, like the sweetest part of a kiss, is that ecstatic, anticipatory moment "just before!"

Christmas Day, itself, like the first kiss, is nearly always disappointing. On Christmas Day, it usually rains and everybody overeats, and nobody finds anything in his stocking that he expected or wanted, and everybody is all frazzled out from a shopping jag or suffering from a hangover.

HELEN ROWLAND

But Christmas Eve—the whole week BEFORE Christmas! That is the magic moment when the fairies walk abroad and you sense their presence in the air. Somehow, your feet feel lighter and the stars look brighter; and every really HUMAN human-being is a boy or a girl again, with the heart dancing inside of him and a tree full of glittering fancies springing up somewhere in the back of his consciousness.

THAT is the "Christmas Spirit" we hear so much about! The spirit of childish dreams and fairyland. The beautiful "ghost spirit" of youth and illusions and belief-in-things, which touches and softens the soul of the hardest old cynic, and lights it up with a thousand little candles.

The mystic thrill of the winter Solstice—the tremulous feeling that something wonderful, delightful and altogether magical is GOING to happen! The little clutch of eagerness and joy in the throat, which comes to every one of us as long as there is one drop of youth in his blood and in his heart!

That warm tingling around the heart, that thrills and suffuses you, every time you dig down in your pocketbook or your check-book and drop your mite into the Red Cross box or the Salvation Army kettle or the little grimy hand held out to you.

* * *

That glow, which warms you at the ringing of the bells and the sight of the gay red Santas on the street corners, and the mountains of pine trees and holly in front of the green grocers!

That "jes 'fore Christmas" feeling!

As long as you have it, you are YOUNG with the spirit of eternal youth! And, alas, when you lose it, you are middle-aged, and no facial surgery or gland treatments can help you!

* * *

For, after all, Christmas is the symbol of the glow of Youth and Faith in the heart! The bright oasis of illusion in the modern desert of materialism! The world's greatest REJUVENATOR!

* * *

Tell me how you feel about Christmas, and I'll tell you how old you are!

Poison Pen Letters Stir Fay King to Anger

By FAY KING.

FROM time to time we read of trouble, unhappiness, and even suicide brought about by that most despicable of human vermin, the anonymous letter writer.

Few persons fortunately, are so lax in mentality and morals as to stoop to so unpardonable a sin as making trouble by penning vicious letters signed "a friend," but otherwise anonymous—which means without name and with authorship unknown.

Yet many persons who would not stoop to writing an anonymous letter make as much trouble in the world because while they are not anonymous letter writers they are anonymously minded.

Anonymously-minded thinkers veil their malicious gossip behind the familiar "they say" or "I have heard from sources which I cannot name."

Destructive and malicious gossip is only oral anonymous letter writing.

Much trouble and unhappiness and misunderstanding and heartbreak have been brought about in this world by these anonymously-minded people who think along the same trouble-making lines the anonymous letter writer does.

The only difference is that they disguise their thoughts instead of their handwriting.

They apparently repeat what they have heard, but more often it is merely expressing what they themselves think.

The anonymous letter writer and the anonymous gossip are sisters in trouble-making and should be ignored!

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

1. What was the name of the tribe of Indians from whom the Dutch are said to have bought the present site of New York City?
2. Who was the "Nine Day Queen of England"?
3. What plant is known as the "poor man's friend"?
4. What name is given to the flight of Mohammed from Mecca?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

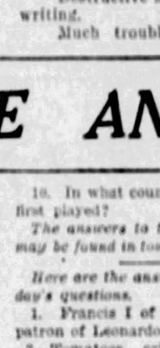
Helping Mother Is One Great Privilege

ONE of the poets has sung:

"In the heavens above
'The angels, whispering to one another,
Can find, amid their burning terms of love,
None so devotional as that of 'mother.'"

Another poet, in establishing his conception of where the shades of the dead reside, created a special heaven for mothers. That is a beautiful thought.



DR. COPELAND

With a thousand grateful memories of a grateful mother, I never approach this subject without being all but overwhelmed by the floods of memory. You have similar thoughts. I never knew a decent man or woman who did not hold his mother in sweetest memory.

In speaking of motherhood recently, I referred to the laudable respect in which Mary, the Mother of God, is held by members of the Catholic Church. In my comments, innocent of the accurate and proper distinctions in shades of meaning made by Catholics, I used the wrong verb. I spoke of their "adoration of Mary."

This was not the right word to use. A number of my Catholic readers have written me in kindness and all good feeling, suggesting that I correct any wrong impression my statement may have created. They call attention to the fact that only the Infinite God is to be adored. They are taught to respect and reverence and venerate the Blessed Mother.

As I said in the article referred to, I have always as a Protestant respected the Catholic Church for its attitude towards the Mother of Jesus. Not only is it a wonderful thing to bear in solemn thought the woman who had her unrivaled privilege, but also the love the Master bore His mother is an unfailing reminder to us of the love and respect in which we should hold our mothers.

There are many sacrifices associated with motherhood. There must be self-denial as regards social and other engagements. Being a mother is the most exacting job in all the world. But no real mother ever regards it as such. She is so wrapped up in the joys and anticipations of motherhood that the sacrifices are disregarded, indeed they are not accepted as sacrifices.

In every household where there is an expectant mother, or the mother of a young child, there is a solemn obligation resting on the other members of the family. It isn't fair to neglect this good woman, to leave unnecessary things for her to do, or to create an atmosphere of discord.

The mother must be guarded against all those things which make for worry or unhappiness. Heavy lifting and fatiguing efforts must be the tasks of the others in the household.

We must bear in mind, not only the immediate health of the mother, but her future as well. Neglect or overdoing in this period of her life will lay the foundation for serious physical trouble in the future. Do not forget this.

Let us do our full share to lighten mother's burdens. The memory of having done so will go with us always.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — FRIDAY DECEMBER 23 — TWENTY-FIVE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

THE palmy days of the old Central League in basketball, when this district had the fastest grade of floor sport in the country and when the first "world series" ever played in that pastime was staged in Pittsburgh, were recalled to veteran fans this week by the death of David A. Foster, who had for several years made his home at the Schenley Hotel.

It was Mr. Foster who put an all-star professional team in McKeesport after that city, with only fair success, had maintained a five in the Central League in the first two years of that loop, 1905 and 1906. With his new combination, Mr. Foster not only won the Central League championship for McKeesport, but he also brought the world's title to the Tube City.

THE reorganization of the McKeesport team into the strongest quintet in the country grew out of a couple of visits made to this section in 1904 and 1905 by the then famous Tamaqua five.

The stars cleaned up with the crack South Side team, which had been practically invincible in these parts, but in spite of their remarkable strength they later decided to break up.

Frank Hough, the greatest player of his time, became captain of the South Side team in the Central League, and in 1907, the second year of the league, Mr. Foster, with the aid of John J. Freund of this city, one of the organizers of the league and manager of the old South Side team, succeeded in landing a couple of the others in Charley O'Donnell and Alois Getzinger.

TO these he added Andy Sears from Chicopee, Mass., Pete Boggio from the same section, Henschel from Jersey City, Swenson from Trenton and Morris from Reading.

With this lineup, Mr. Foster ended the reign of the South Side team as the champions of this region in the season of 1909, and following that season basketball's first world series was arranged between the McKeesporters and the DeNeri team of Philadelphia, champions of the Eastern League. The series was played at Duquesne and McKeesport won easily.

WALTER MUELLER, former Pirate outfielder, still is keeping the major league officials and record keepers busy as to whether he is "in" or "out." "Heinie," who holds the big league championship for retirements or come-backs, is now planning another return act. He is still carried on the Pittsburgh club's involuntarily retired list, and has asked the Pirate management to reinstate him and give him another trial next spring.

Having committed no offense, Mueller is not rated as ineligible, and it will not be necessary for him to apply to Commissioner Landis for a restoration to good standing. All that is necessary is a reinstatement and a contract from the Pittsburgh club, or a reinstatement and a release to some other club.

IN addition to holding the record for withdrawals and returns in organized baseball, Mueller also holds the distinction of being the only diamond performer who continued in the game after suffering what was in a sense a broken neck.

After he had played for some time in the 1922 season it was discovered

THEY CLASH TONIGHT

The Pitt basketball Panthers and Dartmouth College meet tonight on the Pitt Stadium court to inaugurate Pitt's home season, following a successful invasion of the Middle West during which four Western Conference teams were beaten in as many starts. The group picture above shows the Pitt squad in its new outfits, marking the first time the Panther insignia has made its appearance on the uniforms of Pitt athletes. The sweat shirt and pants are canary-colored with blue trimmings and the Panthers on the backs also are in blue. These combinations are worn over the regulation uniforms until play begins and created quite a sensation on the Big Ten floors. Left to right in the group picture are: Cohen, forward; Ashbaugh, guard; Sandberg, forward; McGill, guard; McMahan, center; Hyatt, forward; Capt. Sykes Reed, guard, and Wunderlich, forward.

SUCCESS

Has crowned the coaching efforts of Dr. H. C. (Red) Carlson, former Panther football and basketball luminary, who this season boasts one of the greatest college fives in the land.

CAPTAIN OF THE STARS

Sykes Reed, former Braddock High School boy, is playing a fine game at guard for the Panthers and also is handling the quintet in splendid fashion on the floor. The outfit promises to compile one of the finest records in Pitt basketball history.

M'KINNON'S GOAL GIVES TEAM OVERTIME WIN

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—The long overdue victory of the Pittsburgh Pirates came to them last night in an over-time league contestwith the Maple Leafs, the Smoky City icemen chasing out of town after the contest with a 3 to 2 victory.

It was the twelfth game of the season for the Buccos, who had failed in the previous eleven starts to register a win. They had managed to secure three ties, but had been unable to break into the victory column.

Last night, they came from behind to win when Hib Milks tied up the game in the third frame, after the Leafs had held a 2 to 1 lead from the opening period.

Johnny McKinnon pegged a long shot at Goalie Roach shortly after the overtime period started. Roach stopped the drive, but dropped the puck, which flopped into the net and the game was Pittsburgh's.

The Pirates scored first, Cotton scoring after McCaffrey had missed a shot. Then the Leafs tallied twice, Redden and Bill Carson scoring.

The second period was scoreless, but in the third, with but 40 seconds of play remaining, Milks clicked in his goal.

The lineup:

Pittsburgh—3.		Toronto—2.
Worters	G	Roach
Burke	D	Day
McCaffery	D	Duncan
Milks	C	Carson
Darragh	W	Bailey
McCurry	W	Keeling

Pirate spares—Drury, White, Cotton, Rothschild, McKinnon and Smith. Toronto—Redden, Herberts, Patterson, Cox, Gorman and Ramsey.

Referee—Dave Ritchie and W. O. Hare. Scoring: First period—Cotten, Redden, Carson. Extra period—McKinnon. Penalties—Drury, Duncan, McKinnon 2, Burke 3, Gorman Carson.

NOTES of the BOXERS

TONY ROSS of Carnegie entered the ring against Young Piazzi of Mt. Washington for the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple, Carnegie, last night with a badly stoved right thumb and was unable to use that hand at any stage, with the result that many of the fans thought Piazzi outscored him. However, the judges, Bull Brown and Jim McLaughlin, both voted for Ross as the victor. In the other bouts, Jimmy Prescott of Carnegie obtained the decision of Referee Eddie Kennedy over Jess Houk of McKeesport after the judges had split; Jackie Rodgers stopped Kid Alexander in the sixth round, Alexander being handicapped by a bad right hand, and Chuck Von won by a technical knockout when his bout with Jimmy Cosgrove was stopped in the fifth round.

Freddie Boylstein of Kittanning won by a technical knockout over K. O. Ferry of McKeesport in the fifth round at Kittanning last night. Referee Joe Keally halted the battle with Ferry in a weakened condition and bleeding badly from his left eye. Young Norrigan of Pittsburgh resigned to Luis Terris of Ford City

Babe and His Sax Become Real Pals

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth, home-run hitter extraordinary, golfer, hunter, motorist, bridge expert and epicurean, is seeking new worlds to conquor. He's learning to play a saxophone.

The Babe wants to pour out soulful tunes and jazzy bits, just like Paul Whiteman. So he confessed to his brethren here of the Yankees.

"I can play two pieces now," George Herman proudly exclaimed at the Yankees' offices after his return from a hunting trip in the Long Island marshes "Say, if I had a sax here I could show you. By spring I'll be able to give you fellows a real concert."

W. VA. VARSITY CARDS WILL CLOSE SOON

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 23.—During the Christmas lull and before being absent on a trip to the grid officials' meeting to be held in New York next week, Director Stansbury of W. V. A. I. is making himself busy in closing up the dates for the varsity basketball and wrestling teams.

SALEM CARDS PAIR

WESTON, W. Va., Dec. 23.—Salem College will face two out of state teams before the opening of the state intercollegiate schedule, playing Albion College of Michigan on December 28 and Canisius College of Buffalo, N. Y., on January 3.

U. S., BRITISH POLO MEET DISCONTINUED

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—The international military polo series between the United States and Great Britain will not be continued in 1928, officials of the United States Polo Association announced yesterday. Matches have been conducted between army representatives of the two nations since 1923

SOMEWHAT sobered by the thought of what happened to Duquesne last night when the Dukes were "taken to the cleaners" by a fine Ohio Wesleyan varsity, the University of Pittsburgh's Golden Panthers will take the floor against Dartmouth's Green in the Stadium Pavilion tonight, opening the 1927-28 Pitt home season.

Doc Carlson gave his Panthers their final workout yesterday afternoon in preparation for the game. He is practically set on his starting lineup for this fray, something he was never sure of while he and the boys were in the West. Hyatt, Cohen, McMahan, Reed and Wrobleskie are primed to take the opening plunge against the Green tonight.

Dartmouth, known as a fast scoring aggregation, is coached by the veteran basketball man, Ed Wachter. The Green has a fine player in Swarthout, the man who led the Green to a victory over Case School of Cleveland the other evening when the Engineers had an "on" night and came near bumping off the Easterners. He made nine field goals in that game.

The game is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock. Buck Baird and Marty Wetzel will officiate.

The Panther Cubs will play Schenley High School in a preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

DUKES TROUNCED

Chick Davies, who would rather be right than president, certainly knew whereof he spoke when he said before the game that his Dukes were going to take a punching around from Wesleyan. Chick was probably talking for the benefit of any overconfident members of the team, but he hit the nail squarely on the coco.

The Dukes lost last night because they failed to play good basketball. Wesleyan, with the smartest, best coached and cleverest shooting quintet that has appeared in Pittsburgh

Burns-West View Plan Indoor Game

Old Man Weather is going to take a beating from Joe Football in the final bout of the year between the two. Joe Football will score a hit over Kid Weather by transferring his activities to an indoor gridiron. This became known late yesterday when it was announced that the Burns A. A. of New Kensington and West View had scheduled a game, to be played Christmas afternoon in the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery Armory.

It will be the second time that indoor football has been tried in Pittsburgh. Six years ago, Mike Kelly put the Strip and East Liberty elevens in a contest in the same place, a scoreless tie resulting.

Arthur Thurnblad, Chicago cue star, holds a 15-point lead over Charley Ellis, local veteran and former champion, as the players go into the final blocks of their special 500-point three-cushion match today.

Thurnblad won both the afternoon and evening blocks from Ellis yesterday. In the afternoon session he triumphed by a 63 to 39 score, and after dinner won by a 50-40 count. In the afternoon he ran past his needed 50 points to make up a 12-point lead that Ellis held over him.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(INS.)—Efforts are being made to hold a national 18.1 balkline billiard tournament here, it was learned today. Billiard enthusiasts believe the 18.2 game has become too easy for the masters.

Welker Cochran, who lost his 18.2 title to Young Jake Schaefer of Chicago here Wednesday night, has gone to Florida for a vacation.

Robertson, Once Tartan Hero, Here to Wed

Jimmy Robertson, former captain and quarterback of the Carnegie Tech football team, is back home from Philadelphia, where he is employed by a rubber concern, for a big occasion, the same being a Christmas Eve wedding tomorrow night to Miss Alice Pillow, daughter of Lloyd Pillow, of 3202 Orleans street, in the bride's home.

Mieles Beat Somermans

By JULIUS LEVIN.

OWING to the death of Mrs. Oliver O. Carman, sister of Mickey Gross, captain and star guard of the Broadway Club of Beechview, the long-awaited Allegheny County League battle between Broadway and Duquesne Fayettes, two teams tied for first place with three victories and no defeats, originally scheduled in Beechview tonight, was called off by the management of the home quintet.

Mrs. Carman died in the home of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, 1444 Alabama avenue, Dormont, yesterday and the contest was called off by mutual consent of the managements.

Neither team has suffered a defeat in the Allegheny County League race to date and indications are that a capacity crowd will turn out when they oppose each other on the floor. The Duquesne Lafayettes defeated Braddock, Goose Goslins and McKees Rocks Business Men, while Broadway has triumphed over McKees Rocks Business Men, Braddock American Legion and the Enoch Rauhs.

SMALL FLOOR

The Broadway floor is a comparatively small one, giving the Beechview passers a slight edge over the winners of last year's championship. The small-sized court gives a team which boasts good shots a decided advantage over the best passing aggregation. The Scarlet Hurricane of Duquesne is noted for its brilliant passing attack, but this style of play is of little advantage on a small court where the players are cramped.

The important battle will bring together five former members of the Morrys, last year's Central League champions. The Duquesne Lafayettes have George Ramsay at center, while the Broadway Club includes in its lineup Moon Klinzing, Ken Loeffler, Mickey Gross and Art McGuirk, all former Morrys.

What little doubt existed in local independent circles that the J. J. Mieles, last year's O. & P. League champions, were not in a class by themselves among the contenders for the light first-class title was dispelled last night when the champions scored their seventh straight league victory by defeating another strong contender, the Sumer Somermans, 52 to 34.

Outclassing their opponents from the first whistle, the Mieles, with only one exception, when the Somermans came within two points of tying the score, held the upper hand and were never in danger of being overtaken. Shooting with deadly accuracy from all angles of the floor, the Mieles were able to pile up a comfortable lead in the first half that was sufficient to carry them to victory with points to spare.

for at least two years, outplayed the locals in every department of the game, and presented one of the smoothest forwards it has been Pittsburgh's pleasure to glimpse since the year of the Big Thirst in this chap Hnizder. Hnizder led his team to the 36-23 victory they scored over the Dukes, though he was ably aided by the rest of the eight-man squad that has played six games in eight nights for the Bishops.

Lacking the cool, calculating O'Donovan, and by a dizzy, inaccurate passing game, ever on the defensive and unable to check the fast and cleverly attacking Bishops, the Dukes floundered about last night without ever holding a lead, and were fortunate that Jock Rosenberg was in the game, else the score might have been substantially greater.

Jock made the game for Duquesne, and of all the players who got into the contest for the Dukes, alone played heads-up basketball. Little Stevens, a freshman midget, played the greater part of the engagement and showed the most promise of any of the new men, including Lasman, Benedict and Colodi.

Benedict went fairly well, but was ejected from the ball game in the second half after four personal fouls had been charged against him.

BISHOPS SMART

Wesleyan again showed itself to be a second half team, piling up 21 points after the intermission. The night before, you know, they scored 28 against Grove City, to beat the Crimson, 40-28. Last night they led at half time by 15-11.

I think this Wesleyan team is about as smart a basketball team as you will see in Pittsburgh all season. There may be better shooting quintets here later and faster ones, but you will hardly see one with the combined speed, cleverness and brains that Wesleyan showed the boys last night. They were good.

Hnizder was the high point man of the evening, registering six baskets and two out of three foul tries for a total of 14 points.

The lineup:

Wesleyan—36.		Duquesne—23.
Hnizder	F	Lasman
Seigenthaler	F	Reich
Magley	C	Vernon
Spoonmore	G	Benedict
Halliday	G	Rosenberg

Score by periods:

Ohio Wesleyan	15	21—36
Duquesne	11	12—23

Substitutions—Ohio, Berns for Magley, Coyner for Hnizder, Wertz for Seigenthaler, Thomas for Spoonmore, Helwig for Halliday; Duquesne, Colodi for Lasman, Stephens for Reich, Reich for Benedict, Lasman for Colodi.

Field goals—Ohio, Hnizder 6, Seigenthaler 2, Magley 2, Halliday 2, Helwig 2; Duquesne, Lasman 2, Reich, Vernon 3, Rosenberg Benedict, Stephens.

Foul goals—Ohio, 8 out of 12; Duquesne, 7 out of 15.

Referee—Buck Snyder.
Umpire—Buck Baird.

AKRON DEFEATS GREEN

AKRON, O., Dec. 23.—Dartmouth, Eastern collegiate floor champion last year, met its initial reverse of the season here last night, falling, 29 to 29, before the sharpshooting of Akron University. With a veteran team, Akron took an early lead and at no time during the game was Dartmouth ahead.

A brief spurt late in the first half enabled Dartmouth to decrease Akron's lead at the intermission to 17 to 13, but an Akron rally soon boosted the margin to 10 points. Swarthout, Dartmouth's stellar forward, who caged goals from all angles of the court against Case at Cleveland Wednesday night, tallied more than half of his team's goals, scoring six baskets.

SPORT COMMENT

that one of the vertebrae in his neck was broken.

The injury was suffered in spring practice at Hot Springs, Ark., that year in a collision with Charley Grimm at first base, but it was not until the latter part of the season that the full extent of the hurt was discovered and Mueller dropped out of the game.

He returned to the Pirates for the seasons of 1923 and 1924, but asked to be placed on the voluntarily retired list after the latter season. He was out in 1925, but came back in 1926, only to go on the voluntarily retired list in 1927.

EVEN before that time Mueller had some ups and downs as a Pirate. Pittsburgh obtained him from Joplin for the 1922 season, but on June 28, George Gibson, then manager, sent him to the Flint (Mich.) club.

As soon as Gibson resigned as manager on June 30 and Bill McKechnie was appointed to take his place, Bill's first act was to recall Mueller from Flint on July 1.

Walter remained with the Corsairs until the broken vertebrae was discovered in the latter part of the season.

Though Pittsburgh already has five candidates for the vacant outfield job in Comorosky, Barnhart, Scott, Brickell and Layne, Mueller tells that he has a chance to give some of them a run for a berth as extra outfielder, and accordingly has asked President Dreyfuss to reinstate him and take him back.

DANNY TAYLOR, whose home is near West Newton, and who was once tried by the Pirates until he left for home in the middle of the spring training trip, and who later was with Washington and is now "up" again as a Southern Association recruit with the Brooklyn club, was given a big boost by Eddie Ainsmith, veteran catcher, in a talk with Manager Robinson.

Ainsmith, who managed Little Rock last season and has signed with Portland, Ore., for 1928, is quoted as follows:

"Taylor is one of the finest young prospects I've ever seen. He's not big, but he's broad—built like Bernie Neis. Little Danny is as fast as a bullet and the balls he hits also resemble bullets the way they travel. He should be a real big leaguer in a year or two more."

Ainsmith also boosts Taylor's fielding. "He is just as fast in the outfield as he is on the bases," declares Eddie, "and he led our league in stolen bases."

Here's How Representative Men Read 1928 Prospects.

By B. C. FORBES

WILL 1928 prove a better business year than 1927?

I have been putting that question to representative men in different lines. Their combined replies reflect reasoned, reasonable confidence in the national outlook.

FROM James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, it is very encouraging to learn that better business is coming forward for first-quarter and second-quarter delivery next year.

The iron and steel industry enters so largely into the business activities of the country that it has always been regarded as an unusually accurate reflector of general business conditions. Certainly it has been reflecting the slackening of the business pace experienced over the country as a whole during the last few months. Therefore, Mr. Farrell's assurance is extremely gratifying.

CHARLES E. MITCHELL, president of America's largest financial institution, recently summed up his careful analysis in these significant words:

"We have powerful influences tending to swing business back into its stride and to put 1928 definitely in the list of years that have brought good times to the United States."

From another New York banking leader, Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical National, comes the following statement for this column:

"Present indications are that generally prosperous business conditions will continue into 1928. Continued conservatism in business is evident as reflected in moderate inventories. The unprecedented amount of borrowing through the flotation of securities will unquestionably create a further demand for labor and materials. The enormous purchasing power of the country, due to full employment at high wages, will doubtless continue to stimulate consumption of goods.

"Continued easy money is conducive to speculation in the stock market. Any signs of inflation to be found in the present situation may be looked for in that quarter.

"In September, 1923, the payments of Germany under the Dawes plan reach the maximum. How far-reaching the effect of the transfer of reparation payments on international commodity markets may be no one at present can forecast.

"The general opinion is that the two leading political parties will nominate conservative candidates, and I believe we may well anticipate another good business year."

THOMAS N. DYSART of Knight, Dysart & Gamble, and who is also president of the Industrial Club of St. Louis, tells me:

"There seem to be no clearly defined reasons why general business in 1928 should not be as good as in 1927, if not better. Most of the industrial concerns of the country, and particularly the larger ones, have financed themselves with long-time money at low rates of interest; the banks throughout the country are in better condition than they have ever been; merchants are optimistic and are building plans for aggressive sales campaigns; wages are high and labor conditions good. There will quite likely be some beneficial legislation by Congress in aid of agriculture.

"Unless we have some great unforeseen calamity, such as a final decision of the Supreme Court upholding the extremely low valuations of railroad properties by the Interstate Commerce Commission, we undoubtedly will have a very prosperous year."

COL. L. P. AYERS, the Cleveland banker whose views are widely quoted, declares that "All four of the requisites for sustained business recovery promise to be active and effective in 1928," these four being expanding industrial production, ample supply of easily available credit, agricultural well-being and a good export trade.

Theodore Gary, head of Theodore Gary & Co., Kansas City, contributes this:

"My judgment is that we are nearer a balanced economic condition than since 1914. American manufacturers have become expert at mass production and this is the real source of our prosperity. This is why I believe business prospects are bright.

"It is not the lack of production, nor prices, nor demand, that is now retarding agriculture. Capital has been scared away from investment in farm lands by persistent propaganda that farming is hopelessly on the rocks unless the government in some way rescues it. Change this propaganda and see how agriculture and farm prices will be benefited."

Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Company, after stating that he figured his own company's earnings this year would exceed last year's, declared that, in his judgment, the indications for 1928 are most encouraging both at home and overseas.

ONE things to remember is that the natural course of business in this young, rich, dynamic, growing country is, over a period of years, upwards. And there is sound foundation for reasoning that violent "cycles" are a thing of the past in business, but not, probably, in the stock market.

STANDARD SANITARY PFD. SELLS AT RECORD HIGH

STOCKS WORK UP IN DULL MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP.)—Stock prices continued to work higher in today's market, but trading turned dull on the approach of the Christmas holiday. Call money was marked up to 5 per cent due to the heavy seasonal withdrawals of currency, but there was comparatively little calling of loans. Acute weakness cropped out in several of the insurance shares, which had recorded sensational gains earlier in the month.

Bullish activities were confined largely to the coppers and a select group of other industrials, including United States Steel common, Montgomery-Ward, National Distillers, Curtis Aeroplane and Underwood Typewriter, General Motors and Pittsburgh Coal, which were sluggish in the early trading, rallied briskly in the early afternoon. Rails were rather quiet, although steady accumulation was noted in Atchison, Rock Island, New York Central and Frisco common.

Except for the announcement of several railroad car orders and the resumption of dividends by the Amoskeag Company, there was little business or financial news to influence the price movement. The stability of the market in the face of a sharp increase in brokers' loans and 5 per cent call money helped to maintain bullish confidence, although an increasing number of commission houses continued to urge a restriction of commitments on the theory that the technical position of the market had been weakened by the recent sharp advance.

THOMAS E. FINLEY, Attorney-at-Law, Berger Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.
IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA. IN RE PETITION FOR SALE OF REAL ESTATE OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF INDUSTRY, NO. 2388, JANUARY TERM, 1928.
Notice is hereby given that the petition of William E. Franklin, P. E. Kohler and H. W. Kilgore, respectfully represents: That they are the committee duly appointed by Redstone Presbytery, a corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to take charge and make sale of the real estate of the First Presbyterian Church of Industry, Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. See minutes of the Presbytery hereto attached, made part hereof and marked Exhibit "A." That there are no trustees or other officers of said First Presbyterian Church of Industry and said organization has become inactive and extinct by reason of there being no resident or active trustees representing it, and all the members of said congregation having gone away or having been dismissed to other churches, and there being no one to make title to said real estate to a purchaser thereof, and for the past seven years said church building has ceased to be used for church purposes, and the same is being wasted and destroyed and less valuable every year. Said church property consists of a lot or piece of ground situate in Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, Pa., fronting 56.25 feet on a Public road in the village of Industry and extending back sixty-five feet to property of William B. Miller and wife, and having thereon erected a frame church building. See diagram marked Exhibit "B." The First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1880, and acquired title to lot 60x65 feet by deed from William B. Miller and wife, dated April 28, 1883, and recorded June 4, 1884, in Deed Book, Volume 874, page 302. Title being taken in the name "Trustees of the First Presbyterian Church of Industry, Elizabeth Township, Allegheny County, P

TODAY'S lesson is a marvel of finessing. A finesse is an artifice or deception intended to befuddle the opponents.

The bidder has made a primary bid of a secondary hand. He has a lot of treys and deuces in his mitt, but is intoxicated with optimism.

He leads his best card first to make his dummy think that he was correct in his bidding.

ARTHUR BUGS BAER.

When the dummy lays down his hand and the bidder sees the hamburgered debris he picks up a police whistle. This is very important in doubling. When you are doubled, this means that you lose one hundred points for every lost, strayed or stolen trick.

After having been doubled, the dummy can elect to pass. This is good bridge, but bad discipline. The dummy should redouble to teach his partner a lesson.

Redoubling means that two hundred points are the penalty for each losing trick. That is where the finesse operates. The bidder leads a jack through the dummy. When the opponents are through slamming queens, kings and aces on that jack it looks like Red Grange going through the line with a whole team on his neck.

The finesse didn't work. Which shouldn't discourage the finesser. He should have finessed to the left like a Sunday driver. A finesse to the right rarely works when the opponents are concentrating their technical hate on the dummy.

Tomorrow we will explain why a player should not bid his partner's hand without a periscope.

(The author was Work's dummy for thirty years. He played in the recent Chicago tournament without once taking his toe off his partner's shinbone.)

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON GOLF WIDOWS.

It seems there is a NEW Kind of GRASS WIDOW,
Called the GOLF WIDOW.
This NEW species seems to Get QUITE a little sympathy
From wives, divorcees and
REGULAR sod-widows.
Which is
AMUSING. For, after all, if
A woman is going to LOSE
Her husband ANYWAY, it Seems
NICER to lose him to a
Harmless little GOLF BALL
Than to ANOTHER woman.
For GOLF, after all, is quite
A nice GAME, and it
APPARENTLY keeps a man
CONTENTED as well as QUIET.
Yes, there REALLY is quite
A LITTLE in favor of it.
If her husband is DEVOTED to GOLF, his wife at least
KNOWS it is all in the OPEN.
But if it's a WOMAN—well,
She MAY be in the dark,
So WHY sympathize with
These golf widows?
But, PERHAPS, it is NOT Because their HUSBANDS play
GOLF till sunset,
But that the brutes WILL
TALK about it till SUNRISE.
That makes these WIDOWS
Sore.

Died in Country's Defense; Nation's Grief Is Theirs

It has been long since the heartstrings of the American people were so torn as by this crushing and desperate disaster to the submarine S-4.

The elements of tragedy, pathos and continued suspense have been blended with rare revelations of indomitable courage and contempt of death on the part of both the victims and those who strove to rescue them against the forces of nature.

With all its resources of ships, material, equipment and men the Navy stood helplessly by, waiting for the raging sea to quiet enough for getting grappling chains around the sunken craft.

In the tapped-out signals passed between divers and the men inside not one word of complaint from the imprisoned men, nor of despair. Only those heartrending appeals to "hurry" and "will it be long?" and Lieut. Fitch's acknowledgment of the message that his wife and mother were praying for him.

To the heroes for whom hope is dead, the nation's recognition and the nation's grief! They died in their country's defense no less than if they had perished in war.

Meanwhile, they will not have died in vain if their fate results in better protection for submarine crews in peace-time training and better and more rapid salvage facilities in the case of unavoidable accidents.

The ability to rise to the surface unexpectedly is the essence of the submarine's value as a warcraft.

The same quality is its deadly peril in time of peace, maneuvering in the crowded steamship lanes along the North Atlantic coast.

Some means can surely be found to warn merchant vessels of the presence of practicing submarines that may emerge, and thus render less likely a repetition of the S-51 and S-4 disasters.

If the British and the German navies have better submarine salvage vessels than ours, the facts should be known and the deficiency made up.

The public wants no care or expense spared to prevent a third repetition of exactly this same disaster.

Exit of a Girl Bandit

Being a woman, and a pretty one at that, failed to help Rebecca Bradley Rogers much with a level-headed Texas jury.

Despite the publicity and hysteria marking the trial of the girl bandit, the jury found her guilty of robbing a bank, and she was sentenced to 14 years in prison.

It was an unusual and interesting case that aroused wide attention. Seldom does a good-looking, well-educated girl turn to crime—at least not to the sordid business of robbery. And, as the prosecution contended, discounting the insanity and other pleas entered on behalf of Mrs. Rogers, the real defense presented was "that the defendant is a woman."

But the jury evidently held that a stickup is a stickup, whether perpetrated by a low-browed thug or an attractive girl with bobbed hair, and acted accordingly.

The attention focused on Rebecca Rogers emphasizes a fact nobody has satisfactorily explained — the almost universal disposition of women to be law-abiding.

Of women murderers we have enough and to spare. But killing is a crime of the feelings, at least the kind of killing women do. Seldom does a member of the sex murder in cold blood for gain; there is sure to be emotional background.

Women are strong enough, courageous enough and, in the opinion of certain detractors of the sex, often unscrupulous enough to commit crime. Yet aside from comparatively trivial thievery or swindling, how infrequently do women run counter to the law! The great bulk of dangerous criminals is almost exclusively male.

Some psychologists aver that the female brain is keener than man's, that the woman's traditional "intuition" is nothing but clear, quicker, straighter thinking. So perhaps the reason why women don't go in for crime is simple enough after all—they have too much sense.

What Presumption

To Equal Great Britain!

London and the British Government view with indignation President Coolidge's programme for building United States battle cruisers. London actually fears that we may "be aiming at equality with Britain."

To do that, or even think of it, would, of course, be outrageous. What right has the United States to aim at equality with Britain in anything, especially in fighting ships? Did not our childish IMITATION statesmen at the Washington Conference agree to keep the United States INFERIOR to Great Britain?

However, President Coolidge has a right to change that programme. And, after all, nobody knows better than the British Government that this country has no desire to go to war or attack anybody else. We simply want to be safe, and we mean to be. But fast CRUISERS won't make us safe. They are targets for bombs and torpedoes.

Airships and submarines would mean safety. But we have not got them.

Coolidge Not a Sphinx

Many writers indulge themselves in the pleasantry that Calvin Coolidge is a sphinx, that he is tight-lipped and something of a mystery. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Mr. Coolidge has made more public utterances than any other President in many years, with the possible exception of Wilson, and he had a war to talk about.

Compared with Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Taft and Harding, Calvin is a babbling brook. The radio is partly responsible for this, but the fact remains that Coolidge makes more speeches in a year than some of his predecessors have made in a whole term.

And the satisfactory part of it is that he generally has something to say.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

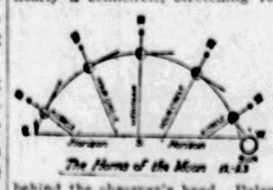
Garrett P Serviss Says:

The Moon's Horns

"It would seem that when the moon is in its earlier phases if the horns were joined by a straight line, another line starting from the center of that one and perpendicular to it, should point toward the sun. But often it appears not to do so. Please let us have an article on this."—PHILIP CONKLIN.

YOU do not allow for the fact that we see the heavens as the interior of a hollow sphere on which the shortest line joining any two points, or objects such as the sun and moon, must be a great circle of the sphere. A line drawn in the manner you describe, would be a circle of that kind. A look at our diagram may serve to show you how such a line appears with regard to the horizon.

We there see a part of the moon's apparent path, as nearly a semicircle, stretching round between East and West and rising highest in the South. The "hour circles" drawn through the moon in its various phases and positions are all great circles of the sphere meeting at the North Pole of the heavens behind the observer's head. Below the horizon they center on the south celestial pole. The hour circle running through the south point corresponds with the observer's meridian.



Now, the moon and the sun are connected by the great circle already mentioned as representing the moon's apparent path, both lying in the plane of that circle. But the observer on the earth, as it were, looks down upon that plane at a considerable angle, depending upon his latitude, so that the circle sweeps across his sky, bending round to right and left as it descends from its central point in the South to meet the horizon in the East and the West. If it coincided with his horizon he would see it as a straight line.

Placing the sun just under the horizon in the West, let us first consider the appearance of the crescent of the new moon nearest the sun. Since the horns of the moon lie nearly in a north-and-south line, the line joining them must run in the same direction, i. e., must lie in the hour circle corresponding with the position of the moon in the sky. A perpendicular from the center of this line points plainly very nearly to the sun, when the two bodies are so near to one another.

But now consider the crescent when the moon has reached the next hour line east of the sun. Again the line joining the horns lies in the hour line, but now, owing to the inclination to the horizon of the plane that contains the moon and sun, the perpendicular from the center, although it really does point to the sun, seems to point above it, because the observer's eye does not lie in the same plane, but views it on an angle.

When the moon reaches the half phase and appears exactly in the south this same line appears parallel with the horizon, though its plane is really inclined to the horizon. Follow on through the gibbous to the full phase and you will see that the north-and-south line on the moon becomes inclined just the other way from what it was at new moon until the line toward the sun appears to point upward instead of downward with regard to the horizon.

This is an effect of perspective which must always be allowed for in observations of the sun and the moon; for instance, in case of such phenomena as the transits of Mercury across the sun's disk, the direction of movement appears quite different at different times of the day. A spot on the sun which is seen near the lower edge in the morning will appear to be near the upper edge at sunset.

Often on a very clear day you may see the old moon at, or approaching, the third quarter phase during the morning hours, and then you may interest yourself by tracing across the sky the position of the great circle that connects the moon with the sun.

Returning Favors

IF YOU don't intend to return favors, don't accept them.

You may think that among your friends there is no thought of your reciprocating for favors they have gladly bestowed.

But what they expect and what you should do in return to show your appreciation, are quite different matters.

The very best friends get tired after a while if they come to notice how eagerly you accept kindness and how hard it is for you to remember that you have been entertained at their homes, times without number.

When it is up to you to invite them to come and see you, it seems almost impossible for you to name a convenient time.

Things are so conflicting and you are so busy.

But you did not give your friends a chance to say whether things were conflicting on their side—you just went anyway, didn't you?

You kept saying to yourself that they would feel hurt if you didn't see them about every so often.

Why don't you show that you are going to be hurt if they don't take time to rest up a bit and be entertained in your home for awhile.

The Rhyming Optimist

Song—On Mother's Lips

WHEN I turn the pages
Of my book of life,
Note its changeful stages—
Mirth, tears, peace and strife.

Much I find that makes me
Full of deep content;
Much that stirs and wakes me
To the blessings sent.

And no dream more moving
From those pages slips
Than that of the loving
Song on Mother's lips.

From my childhood hours,
Far as I recall,
Notes as fresh as flowers
From her lips would fall.

Years conspire to kill the Past with slow eclipse,
But no time can still the
Song on Mother's lips.

Who Dares Try It?

ELLEN WILKINSON, member of Parliament and strong advocate of votes for flappers, says in a speech that "the present position of woman is on a par with slavery."

In this country, to prove or disprove this theory, all that is necessary for any husband to do is to try to treat the modern wife like a slave.

Some people get left because they are so sure they are right.

There are no short cuts to fame. Still most of us have our shortcomings.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Thoughts while strolling: A flower and puppy shop. The solemn-looking Winthrop Ames. The Peg Woffington shop waitresses. People who stagger trying to see the clock on the Paramount building. Fit yourself clothing stores. A turbaned gentleman with middle-parted whiskers.

The sidewalk magazine display next door to the Casino. The fellow whose shirt front becomes an electrically lighted ad still has his job. Another show indorsed by Mayor Walker. The Herald Square bootblack who wears a pince-nez. The jerky rumble thump of the elevated.

Hotel facades sliced into rows of small shops. A priest chatting with a blind man. A new drug store in the Flatiron building. The old woman with a fortune telling parrot. Al Jolson's leather coat. What became of the gilded Diana atop the old Madison Square Garden?

Family hotels with those gloomy, expressionless servants. Hunched-up figures shivering on park benches. Unlatched galoshes. Lofts for rent. A beautiful girl reaches in her stocking to pay a taxi driver. Where was I? O, yes, a one-armed peanut seller who sings tenor.

A famous table d' hote Chianti parlor becomes a mission. A Chinese carrying a cane. Inwood House—where straying sisters are turned into respectable paths. Striped barber poles. A red mustache and a white derby. The building boom in Greenwich Village.

Madam Bertolotti's—where arty attic folk gather. Soda fountains featuring spumoni and zabaglione. Hatless, smocked and long-haired local celebrities trying not to appear self-conscious. Rose O'Neil's studio. The little frame buildings are disappearing.

The rare charm of Washington Square. Front porches and great open hearths. Brass door knockers and foot scrapers. Iron fences. The ancient Brevoort—now modernized. Mark Twain's red brick home. And mammoth apartment houses shooting to the skies.

Walter Hampden, the Shakespearian actor, is now president of The Player's Club—following such distinguished predecessors as Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson and John Drew. The Player's clings to its old home in Gramercy Park despite efforts of the newer generation to move northward. T club house was the home of Booth and was presented to the club as a gift. While it was founded as a theatrical club it has many members among the artists and writers. It is a pleasant place, hallowed by memories of many distinguished actors who made it their haven.

Mr. Hampton is an actor who appears in Shakesperian and Ibsen roles before high-brow audiences. And he is the only actor in town to be appearing in his own theater bearing his own name.

Frequent visitors to New York make it a point to arrive on Sunday. They have learned to know the Sabbath quiet and thus avoid the whoop of the daily hurrah. New York until late in the afternoon on Sunday has the quiet of a country churchyard. One may walk for blocks on Broadway Sunday morning and not encounter more than a handful of people. Fifth avenue has, too, its pedestrianic and traffic desolation. The buttons from the various hotels promenade the kiycodies on "the greatest street" and that is about all the human activity. The New York that does not go to church sleeps late and reads the Sunday newspapers. Around 4 o'clock the town begins to bubble and cafes show signs of life. Broadway theaters offer their "sacred concerts" at night and Sunday evening is the big night of the week for the movie palaces. Lines coil around the block. Supper clubs do a slight business for most New Yorkers have a dislike for the Monday morning headache."

Worries—Many Silly

By DR. FRANK CRANE

If we will carefully take stock of our worriments we will find that most of them are about things that do not matter. For a caption that would be suitable at the head of the list of rules I would suggest, "What Of It?"

I suppose I had the best mother in the world. She is entitled to all of my respect and esteem because she patiently put up with me all through my childhood and cared for me until the day of her death. I can remember, however, that when I went away from home in my younger days she was always solicitous that I should wear clean underwear and stockings because she said that if there was to be a train wreck and my body was found, what would people think if they found out I had on dirty underwear, as though I should care about the state of my underwear when I was a corpse.

Much of the care and trouble that mothers take is of the Martha kind, for Martha was "careful and troubled about many things."

Suppose the children do litter up the floor and pick the flowers in the garden and tramp the house with muddy feet. Anybody who knows children expects that and if they don't know children they are out of luck.

It might be all right to see that your boys are washed behind the ears and that their finger nails are clean, but you should remember that while these things should not be left undone there are some more important things. It is important, for instance, that your children should always think of you pleasantly and gratefully. Your affection for your son counts more with him than your solicitude for his appearance.

It is well that the dandruff is brushed off your husband's coat collar and that his tie is right and his boots are polished, but if you do nothing else for him but call attention to these peccadillos by and by the idea will seep into his head that you are nagging. What he wants most of all is to keep his love and esteem for you and you ought to work at making yourself worthy of that much more than to work at how he will look to other people.

I do not mean to underrate the little attentions that should be bestowed upon those we love, but I emphasize the fact that these little things are of small importance compared with the greater matters of life.

On one occasion it was said by a wise man that the Pharisees paid tithes of mint, anise and cumin, but neglected the greater matters of the law. So we sometimes make the mistake of looking for flecks of dust when we should be admiring the landscape.

It is all a matter of proportion. The principal thing to learn in living is how to value things, how to be particular about the essentials and give small heed to the non-essentions.

A boy recently turned up at Catalina Island after having been lost for several days. His mother broke down and wept. "He's safe," some one remarked. "I know," sobbed the mother, "but he has a dirty shirt on right here in front of all these people."

Five-and-Ten Ideas

S. S. KRESGE, always prominent in prohibition circles, has promised to donate $500,000 to the publicity fund of the Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Kresge is a five-and-ten-cent store millionaire and by investing in the Anti-Saloon League he does not step out of his part.

The League and Prohibition both sound a good deal like five-and-ten-cent ideas.

Tales That Are Told

Job for a Vet

"I am not well, doctor."

"How do you live?"

"Like any other poor dog—I work like a horse all day, I am always ravenous as a wolf, then I am as tired as a dog and sleep like a bear."

"You had better consult a veterinary surgeon."—Der Gemutliche Sachse, Leipzig.

The Long Trail

THE old gentleman felt very sorry for the tramp.

"Goodness!" he gasped. "And you say you are 15,000 miles from home?"

"That's right, sir," answered the tramp, hopefully.

"And where is your home?"

"Australia."

"Dear me! Take this, my good man. And how do you expect to get back?"

The man looked hard at the penny in his hand.

"Well, if I don't do better than this," he said, thoughtfully, "I suppose I'll 'ave to walk!"—London Tit-Bits.

Two Things Certain

THE traveling show suffered from three great drawbacks, but for which it might have been a great success on the road. It had a tenth-rate cast, tenth-rate scenery and tenth-rate songs. Its reception during the opening week had been particularly hostile.

"It's a most extraordinary thing," remarked the producer to the stage manager. "We've left no stone unturned to make the show a success."

"H'm, that's all very well," returned the manager gloomily, as he lit another "gasper." "But you must also remember that up to the present no turn has been left unstoned."

Thrifty

DONALD M'CAUTIOUS sat with his arm around Mary McThrifty. It was a night for love.

His heart was stirred by sentiment. He longed to do something wild and bold, to say something romantic and passionate and startling. Suddenly he was swept from all reasoning by a wave of overwhelming inspiration.

"Mary," he gasped, before he could resist the frenzied impulse of the idea, "Mary! A penny for your thoughts!"

The girl's heart fluttered. So he loved her as much as that? She, too, would do something noble and heroic. He would know his love was requited.

"Na, na, Donald," she whispered, "keep your penny."

Such is true love.—London Tit-Bits.
